Lawmakers Reach Farm Bill Agreement

Policies Called More Equitable For Northeast

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

WASHINGTON, D.C. — After nearly two months of negotiations, U.S. House and Senate conferees have agreed on a national farm bill in time for most of this year's agricultural production.

The House approved the compromise bill by a vote of 280 to 141 Thursday afternoon and President Bush urged the Senate to vote promptly so he could "sign the bill into law."

The "Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002" mandates agricultural policy for the next six years, with about $170 billion in funding allocated for the next 10 years — $73.5 billion above the previous farm program budget baseline.

According to Joel Rotz, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau policy specialist, the new farm bill will bring a greater share of assistance to Pennsylvania's dairy farmers and diversified crop producers than ever before.

"Clearly, this farm bill is more equitable to Pennsylvania farmers than any other farm bill," he said.

A significant boost in conservation funding, a nationwide dairy program, yield and base acreage updates for crops, and lowered payment limits are key provisions of the new bill.

Bill conferees agreed on a total payment limit to farmers of $360,000 per year, a compromise between the Senate bill's proposed cap of $275,000 and the House's limit of $550,000.

Advocates for smaller, diversified family farms strongly back lower payment limits to more fairly distribute aid among the nation's farmers.

For the nation's dairy producers, the bill establishes a new $1.3 billion program that will provide direct payments when the price of fluid milk in the Northeast Milk Marketing Area falls below $16.94 per hundredweight.

With this "countercyclical" provision, dairy producers in all regions of the country will receive 45 percent of the difference between $16.94 and the market price.

These dairy payments will be capped at 2.4 million pounds of milk per year, equivalent to the production of a typical herd of 135 to 140 cows. About 90 percent of the milk produced in Pennsylvania comes from herds that size or smaller, according to Ken Bailey, Penn State dairy economist.

Retroactive to Dec. 1 of 2001, the program could pay out about $60 million this year to Pennsylvania dairy producers, Rotz said.

The bill also maintains the current $9.90 per hundredweight milk price support program, covering all types of milk utilization.

In other specifics, the legislation:

• Mandates an additional $17.1 billion for conservation programs over the next decade, an 80 percent increase. Included are a new $2 billion Conservation Security Program with incentives for farmers to adopt better envi-

Conference Explores Sensibility Of Smart Growth

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

MILLERSVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Smart Growth is the antidote to sprawl, a noted land use expert told more than 180 municipal officials and policymakers Monday evening at Millersville University.

William H. Hudnut III, senior resident fellow of the Urban Land Institute in Washington, D.C., said that only "responsible leadership and the use of the land to enhance the environment" will keep us from sprawl. He defined sprawl as "unplanned, low-density development," he said, that spreads farther and farther out from towns and cities.

Hudnut spoke during the Lancaster County Smart Growth Conference at Millersville University.

Population growth is inevitable, according to the land use specialist. Hudnut, who pointed out the myths generated by those who resist the policies of smart growth, noted there will be 60 million more people in America in 2020 than in the year 2000. Those 60 million people will take up more area than the "size of Texas and California combined."

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
May 1, 2002
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb butterfat. F.O.B. producing plants Northeast· 1.3860-1.5015 Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.3745-1 5015 mostly 1.3745-1 4091.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb wet solids, F.O.B producing plants· Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices. .9550-1.0250; Class III - spot prices - 7500- 9600

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK. FLORIDA This week - In 0, Out 138, last week - In 0, Out 146; last year - In 0, Out 125. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week - In 0, Out 0; last week - In 0, Out 0; last year - In 0, Out 0.

Milk output throughout the region is steady to heavier. Weather conditions are varied Winter conditions continue in the northern most areas with parts of New York and New England receiving measurable amounts of snow in the past week. Colder than normal temperatures continue in the Middle Atlantic area while Florida contacts reports that 90's are common. The heat in Florida has not had a marked impact on the milk flow. Bottlers have more than they need and Florida suppliers are shipping a large number of loads out of state for processing. However, these volumes are about the same as last year at this time.

In the Northeast, milk supplies remain excessive of the continued slow Class I demand. A strike at a milk-user's operation is forcing nearly 1.5 million pounds of milk into manufacturing channels on a daily basis So far, the milk supplier is handling this milk internally, but they are taking in less "outside" milk which is having to find other outlets in the East and nearby Midwest plants. Most manufacturing plants in the East are operating at or near capacity. Contacts feel that this situation (heavy volumes of excess milk) will continue through the month and into June

The condensed skim market is little changed, but there are more reports of low-priced wet solids looking for outlets. Spot buyers are more price-sensitive now that offerings are on the rise. More condensed skim is being dried and NDM stocks are growing.

The fluid cream market is steady. Offerings remain excessive and a higher percentage of the available supply is moving to churning facilities. Spot prices are slightly lower, but sales based on current-week trading levels are significantly lower than last week's prices. Butter makers are often purchasing cream based on the market, date-of-delivery, which is currently well below last week's CME average. A large number of loads continue to move to Midwestern butter plants Ice cream demand is just fair as continued cold weather in the Northeast is impacting consumption. Most producers are taking contracted volumes and limiting spot purchases Cream cheese output is also steady, but spot purchases are often taking place at lower multiples.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
May 1, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Wheat bids continued to climb upward as crop concerns offer support.

Weather forecasts are calling for warmer, dry conditions in hard red winter wheat areas while soft red winter wheat growing regions expect more unwanted moisture. The Kansas Wheat tour group reported better than expected conditions in Nebraska and central Kansas. The wheat crop in Western Kansas and Colorado, however, is in dire need of moisture.

Corn bids gained more ground today as planting delays continue in the eastern Corn Belt. Traders believe it's too early to become overly concerned but were glad to see some strength back in the market. Export demand remained slow overnight for all commodities.

Soybean bids are back on their usual roller coaster, moving slightly lower on slow export demand and delayed progress in corn planting. Active harvest in South America also weighed on US bean bids. Wheat 2 to 5 cents higher. Corn 2 to 3 cents higher. Sorghum 5 cents higher. Soybeans 2 to 3 cents lower.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

MAY 6–12, 2002

NEW MOON, MAY 12

CH-CHILLY S-S-SAINTS

Spring may have sprung, but May 11, 12, and 13 often revert to the colder days of winter, according to weather lore. The Three Chilly Saints'—Mamertus, Pancras and Gervais (also called Mammertius, Pancratius, and Gervatius or Servatius)—feast days often fall during a cold snap. Some called them the Ice Saints or Frost Saints, and many farmers held off planting until after the Three Chilly Saints' days had passed. Germans knew these days as the Iceman Days, and the English and French watched for a late frost around this time. St. Boniface (May 14) and the chilly "blackthorn winds" were sometimes associated with them, too.

St. Pancras Day (May 12) never passes without frost.

TIP OF THE WEEK

Peas will germinate in garden soil as cool as 40°F.

RHUBARB MUFFINS

1/2 cup safflower oil
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 eggs
5 cups flour
1-1/3 cups sugar
2 tablespoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
4 cups chopped rhubarb
1/2 cup cinnamon sugar (optional)

Preheat oven to 375°F. Mix first four ingredients, then sift in the dry ingredients, mixing at low speed. Fold in rhubarb. Pour into greased muffin tins. Sprinkle with cinnamon sugar, if desired. Bake for 20 minutes.

Makes about 30 muffins.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

OPINION

Banks And Beginning Farmers

Recently we met with our agri-industry banking friends at the annual Penn State-sponsored ag banking conference in State College.

On hand was John Blanchfield, manager of ag banking and rural development, American Bankers Association (ABA).

Along with Robert Bonnet, chief, Guaranteed Farm Loan Branch, USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA), both gentlemen painted a possible rosy scenario for young and beginning farmers.

What's so rosy about depending on an institution that charges interest on the debt no one wants to have? Well, for one, USDA is leading its own "self-examination" in ways to make it easier to deal with debt load through new, proposed programs.

One is a streamlined, simplified interest assistance program proposal (proposal only — nothing is certain yet).

The fascinating thing: every 10 years, according to Blanchfield, the USDA does its own ag economics and land ownership survey of farmers. Now, data is available from 1999 at the latest. That seems old. The ABA took a look at USDA data and did its own survey in February 2002, including banks, Farm Credit, credit unions, and state lending authorities. About 550 surveys were mailed out, with a response rate of 18 percent (not bad!).

For farmers under the age of 35, banks supply the greatest amount of credit (74 percent), followed by Farm Credit System (17 percent), and "other" (nine percent).

In a report released on March 8, 2002, the Government Accounting Office noted that, for young farmers, almost half of the Farm Credit Service institutions have no program or service, two thirds have no measurable goals, half have no marketing or outreach program for young farmers, and the FCA has failed to establish specific regulation or required public disclosure on an institution-by-institution basis. (See the report at www.gao.gov number GAO-02-304.)

So, more work needs to be done. The proposals seem solid. More of this will be under discussion when the ABA meets at their annual conference in Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 10-13 this year. Maybe something good will follow, because our young or beginning farmers certainly could use all the help they can get.

And certainly, FCA needs to take a look at these findings and more fully address the needs of young and beginning farmers.

Now Is The Time

Lancaster County Extension Director

To Be Diligent With Biosecurity Measures On Poultry Farms

Avian influenza is spreading in Virginia and this reminds us of the need to be ever-diligent about protecting our farms from introduced disease. So far, 109 farms have been quarantined and 99 farms have been depopulated.

The types of flocks affected have included broilers, broiler breeders, turkeys, and turkey breeders. More than 2.5 million birds have been depopulated or have been quarantined to be depopulated. Five Virginia counties have been hit with the disease with the majority of the cases being in Rockingham County. Other counties with the disease are Shenandoah, Augusta, Page, and Greene.

To dispose of the depopulated birds, a new technique is being evaluated. A special permit has been granted by the Virginia Department of Environmental Quality to the USDA to oversee the trial incineration of the infected poultry flocks. The Director of the Virginia Department of Environmental Quality stated that the evaluation is being done to provide additional options for the safe disposal of poultry flocks. The trial incinerations will be monitored closely to protect people's health and the environment.

During the test, the USDA technicians will use several portable incinerators and will incinerate up to 600 tons of poultry carcasses a day. The Virginia DEQ will conduct air quality monitoring at the incineration site in Rockingham County and the ash will go to a permitted landfill.

To Apply For The Elk Hunting License Drawing

The Pennsylvania Game Commission has announced that it will begin accepting applications from those interested in being included in the public drawing for one of 70 elk hunting licenses to be made available for this fall's season. The public drawing is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 28, and the elk season is set for Nov. 18-23.

In order to better serve its customers, the Game Commission is allowing hunters to complete and submit applications online through "The Outdoor Shop" on the agency's Website (www.pgc.state.pa.us). For those who prefer to complete a mail-in form, the agency also has posted a printable application on its Website. In addition, applications will be included in the 2002-2003 Pennsylvania Digest of Hunting and Trapping Regulations, which is provided to each license buyer.

"Completing applications online guarantees hunters that their application was received and that they will be included in the public drawing, and eliminates concerns about lost mail or late arrivals," said Vern Ross, Game Commission executive director. "And, in addition to cutting the agency's administrative costs, those filing online reduce the chance of having their application declared ineligible because the filing system notifies individuals who attempt to submit an incomplete application."

A $10 nonrefundable fee must be submitted with the application. Online applications must be accompanied by a credit card payment (VISA, MasterCard, Discover, or American Express accepted) and must be submitted by Sept. 13. No Game Commission office will accept hand-delivered applications.

Forms submitted through the mail must be accompanied by a check or money order made payable to "Pennsylvania Game Commission" and must be received in the Game Commission's post office box by Aug. 23.

Hunters who wish to apply by mail may print the application from the Website, complete it, and mail it to Pennsylvania Game Commission, Elk License Application, P.O. Box 61890, Harrisburg, PA 17106-1890.

"By law, only one application is permitted per person," Ross said. "If a person submits more than one application, all of his or her applications will be declared ineligible and the individual will be subject to prosecution. All application fees are nonrefundable."

Because the application period opens before the 2002-2003 hunting licenses go on sale July 1, individuals are not required to purchase a resident or nonresident general hunting license to apply for the drawing. However, if they are drawn for one of the elk licenses, hunters then will be required to purchase the appropriate resident or nonresident general hunting license and attend a mandatory orientation program sponsored by the Game Commission before being permitted to purchase the elk license. The elk license fees are $25 for residents and $250 for nonresidents.

The 15 hunters awarded antlered elk licenses for the 2001 elk hunt are not eligible to apply for five license years. Those 15 hunters awarded antlerless elk licenses for the 2001 elk hunt are eligible to apply for this year's elk hunt. For more information on last year's elk hunt, visit the Game Commission's Website (www.pgc.state.pa.us), click on "Newsroom," choose "2001 News Releases," and then select "Release # 102-01."

"All applications will be put into one container for the public drawing,"Ross said. "We then will draw enough applications to award 70 elk licenses. The first 36 will be awarded antlered elk licenses, and the next 34 will be awarded antlerless elk licenses."

Of the 70, up to five may be awarded to nonresidents. This number is based on the percentage of nonresident general hunting licenses sold during the previous year, which is about seven percent.

Editor:

Over the past several months I have seen information from a variety of sources, including several agricultural publications as well as sales literature, referring to the dry matter losses in silage bags.

Most of this information would suggest that the dry matter loss in silage bags is in the area of three to four percent. This seemed to me a rather low estimation of loss. So, I did more research.

All information that suggests that the dry matter loss in silage bags is below nine percent is not based in scientific research and is often only an estimation. Some of the information suggesting low dry matter loss is based on situations where not dry matter loss was not actually found, but only wet weight losses were analyzed.

According to Dr. Richard Muck at the USDA research station in Arlington, Wis., information based on wet weight loss is unreliable, because when forage spoils one of the by-products is water. So, much of the original weight of the spoiled feed is actually being counted as unspoiled.

The University of Wisconsin-Madison is the only source of scientifically attained data. They have compiled quite a bit of in-

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

FAITH THAT WORKS

Background Scripture: Galatians 1 through 2.
Devotional Reading: Acts 13:26-39.

There was a time when I had great difficulty in reconciling the Pauline doctrine of salvation by faith, not works, with the seemingly contradictory teachings of Jesus. For two examples among many passages, Jesus says: "Not everyone who says to me 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of my Father who is in heaven" (Mt. 7:21) and "'Truly, I say to you, as you did it not to one of the least of these, you did it not to me.' And they will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life" (Mt. 25:31-46).

The key words in these two passages are "does" and "did." The kingdom of heaven will be peopled by those who do the will of God. Those who "go away into "eternal life" are those who did some act of service to "one of the least of these." This appears in sharp contrast with Paul's insistance that "we know that a man is not justified by works of the law but through faith in Jesus Christ. . . ." We are saved by faith, says Paul, not what we do.

I have come to understand, however, that the teachings of Jesus and Paul on this matter are not so opposed as they might appear. Actually, Paul did not say that we are saved by faith, but by grace, something that is implicit in Galatians but explicit in Romans 6:14: ". . . since you are not under law but under grace."

"Grace to you" is the greeting that begins all Paul's letters and this grace of God in Jesus Christ is the dominant theme that runs through them. Since none of us can save ourselves, it is only by God's grace that we are justified. Faith gives us the impetus to accept this grace, so the classic expression is: saved by grace through faith. Both the teachings of Paul and Jesus are compatible at that point.

It's All Grace!

When Paul says, "it is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me; and the life I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God" (Gal. 2:20), he is saying that whatever he does that is regarded as a good work, it is really the grace of God living in him, not some righteousness of his own, that gives him the power to do the good work. Since God is the source of the grace, Paul cannot claim the good work to justify him.

When I was a ninth grade student, one of my courses was the Print Shop. This was back in the days when printers still set type by hand. Each letter had to be selected from the case and placed in the right sequence on a form. When the line of type was finished, we had to justify the line, which meant spacing out the letters and punctuation marks so that the type completely filled out the line. Otherwise there would have been unsightly gaps in our work.

In a sense, Paul's concept of "justification" is like that, if we remember that it is God who justifies the line of our words and deeds, filling in the gaps and spaces that we can never fill in by our own efforts. So Paul is not putting down good works per se, but just the good works with which we intend to earn our right relationship with God.

Fruits Of Faith

We need to remember, too, that the "faith" of which Paul is speaking is not mere belief. It is belief that makes possible our trust in God so that we can put our life and eternity into his hands. This kind of trust cannot help but produce good works.

In a sense, we could say that we are not saved by our good works, but that we do good works because we are saved. Works are not the cause of salvation, but the fruit of it and any faith that does not produce fruits is not faith at all.

So, while Paul is speaking of the faith that produces good works, Jesus is speaking of the good works that only true faith can produce. It is therefore not a matter of faith or works but faith and works. It is a faith that is inseparable from right living. Works are the fruits of faith.

Both Paul and Jesus, I believe, would agree on that.

Grafting Helps Speed ... Fruit Harvest

Eric Habegger, Akron, grows a large variety of fruit trees on his one-acre orchard. In the past five years he has introduced the "Espalier" method of pruning and training trees, which trains the trees flat against a wall or framework. These trees still produce abundant amounts of fruit but are easier to care for

AKRON (Lancaster Co.) – Variety is the spice of Eric Habegger's life.

Several varieties – no, hundreds of varieties of produce spring to life on his backyard orchard each year.

A Switzerland native, Habegger has been in the U.S. for 48 years but still looks back to the small farm where he grew up.

Researchers Find Ways To Grow Bigger Peaches, Better Yields

ANDY ANDREWS

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) – How does a grower produce a bigger, better peach?

Researchers noted here at the annual Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Convention in late January at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center.

First, select the right tree, fruit specialists – it can make a big difference, according to Dr. Richard Marini, tree fruit researcher at Virginia Tech.

Marini, who provided the first ever Ernie Christ Memorial Lecture in honor of a world-known researcher at the convention, also noted that pruning can also improve fruit size. "Trees pruned more severely have bigger fruit," said Marini.

"One of the ways to get bigger fruit is to do a better job of pruning," he said. It's easier to cut off the flowers or buds with shears than to go and remove the fruit by hand.

And keep water available at the right times, especially in the early stages of growth and the last stages of development.

Marini pointed to research in various places, mainly in Texas, that pointed out, during warm conditions in season, "each tree uses about 17 gallons of water per day," he said.

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) – Tomato growers gathered here during the Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Convention in late January and were rewarded for their efforts.

The annual Tomato Awards Luncheon at the convention allowed growers to "talk to each other and adopt methods for their own operation," noted James Kohl, vice president of Furman Foods. This provides recognition to those high yielders."

But Kohl noted that even so slowly producers are inching toward that goal of 50-tons-per acre yield.

Kohl held up the $100 bill the Ben Franklin he said that would be, he promised, given to the grower that reaches that average. It's going to happen, said Kohl.

Eric Charles Lane was close this year winning recognition for having a 39.22-ton per acre average. So close. At least Lil kept the Franklin another year, Kohl said.

The Master Grower Award for 2002 was presented to Clyde Kreider. Washington Boro The Industry Recognition Award was presented by Kohl to John Everett Allen, wood.

Mountain Of Mums' Draws Customers To Ott's

ANDY ANDREWS

SCHWENKSVILLE (Montgomery Co.) – What do you do with a mountain of soil?

Create the Mountain of Mums, of course.

That's what happened beginning back in 1961 when earth was moved into a pile to build some greenhouses for Ott's Exotic Plants on Rt. 29 near Schwenksville.

The story goes Godfrey Ott told his children, Godfrey II and Clarke to go pull some weeds out of a pile that had been unsightly, said Godfrey II. Ott said that the weeds being an eyesore were replaced by some mums and then pansies in the spring, for customers to appreciate.

So why not make a hill of yellows the color of lemonade from an unsightly lemon?

We made the dirt pile with plants, said Ott. And

Urban Farm Connects With Community, Rural Producers

PHILADELPHIA – Farmers wanted.

That's the rallying call of The Food Trust, a farmers' market association operating in the Philadelphia area.

The Farmers' Market Trust – as the organization was known until recently – was started 10 years ago at Philadelphia's Reading Terminal Market according to Dionne Perry, founder and executive director.

"The goal was to create farmers' markets operating in community settings," Perry said.

During the 2001 growing season, the nonprofit organization operated 10 markets in eight locations within Philadelphia and its suburbs.

Set up in a variety of settings such as sidewalks and parks, the markets are attracting a growing number of urban people who care about the sources of their food, said Perry.

There's a really solid group of consumers interested in connecting with farmers," he said.

Twenty-seven farmers in 2001 supplied a wide array of agricultural products to the markets from baked goods, cut flowers and conventionally grown fruits and vegetables to organic produce and specialty items such as high end salad greens.

PHILADELPHIA – Mary Corboy lives in downtown Philadelphia and bikes regularly to the farm she manages.

From her home the farm is a few dozen blocks away on an abandoned industrial or brownfield site in a rundead-at neighborhood on the east side of the city near Route 95.

It was just a trash dump, Corboy said of the 2½-acre site before she took it over in 1998 and established the Greensgrow Philadelphia Project.

Made possible through a lease agreement with the local community development corporation the project was started from scratch. No plumbing, electricity or useful structures existed on the site – except for a metal ware fence around the perimeter of the property.

Originally started as a hydroponic operation for growing lettuce, Greensgrow has since expanded to include methods for cultivating a wide variety of crops including many tomatoes, specialty vegetables and flowers.

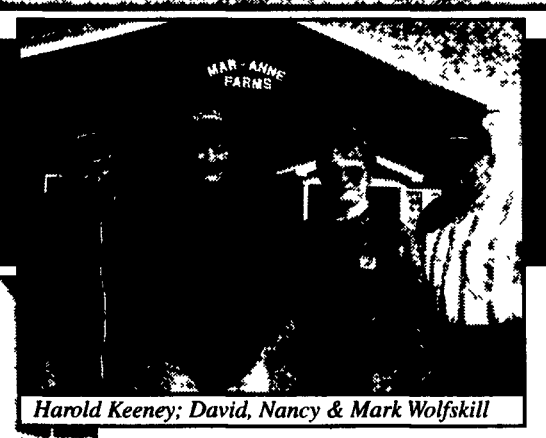
"WAFFLE SLAT" Syri-Con Corporation

HELP WANTED

"We would use slats again if doing it all over!"



Harold Keeney; David, Nancy & Mark Wolfskill

Our original plan was to install scrapers. But after 10 minutes in a slatted barn in Somerset County, we changed our minds. Some people stay away from slats because of the initial cost, but that extra cost is made up for in the first couple years.

The one thing I like the most about slats is that there is no expense. I don't have any scrapers or drive units to maintain. I don't have to run scrapers every day or haul manure like we did in our previous tie stall barn. The cows' foot health has been a lot better, and the cows stay much cleaner. Our milk production is up and the somatic cell count has gone down. I give at least some of the credit to the slats because with less moisture on the floor, there is less bacteria.

-David Wolfskill

"The answer to the most common question is 'No, there is no build-up.' "

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State
April 27, 2002
Economy Surges Ahead During First Quarter

- U.S. economy grew 5.8 percent January-March.
- U.S. past a mild recession.
- Cheese prices holding steady.

The Department of Commerce announced this week that the U.S. economy grew at a rate of 5.8 percent during the first quarter of 2002. This "advanced" estimate of the Gross Domestic Product (GDP) is a measure of the output of goods and services in the U.S.

The Wall Street Journal reported last week that this release was significant for two reasons. First, it means we are out of the recession that began a year ago. Second, the downturn in the U.S. economy will probably go down as the mildest on record.

This information has important implications for the U.S. dairy industry. A growing economy means more business travel, people going on vacations, and families eating out. Mom and Dad are more apt to eat fast food during the busy workweek, and treat the kids to pizza on the weekends, if both have jobs. A recession has very little good news for the dairy industry since it results in weak sales of dairy products. Dairy product prices today are dependent on retail and foodservice sales.

Despite a spring flush that is resulting in excess loads of milk in the marketplace, cheese demand remained fairly stable this week. Prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange held fairly steady and barrels fell slightly from $1.23 per pound on Monday, April 22 to $1.2125 by Friday, April 26. Blocks ranged from $1.2325-$1.2550 per pound this week.

Butter prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange were generally weak, as expected. Grade AA butter prices fell from $1.1725 per pound earlier this week to $1.12 by Friday. USDA reports that butter production is seasonally heavy, cream supplies are readily available, and ice cream production has not yet kicked in. In addition, given high inventory levels, one should expect butter prices to be low during the early spring months. Look for butter prices to pick up a few cents after ice cream production increases and summer heat sets in.

Despite the greater availability of milk this spring, the futures market is still expecting Class III prices to rise from $10.85 per CWT in April to $13.17 per CWT by September. This reflects a fairly neutral seasonal pattern. Class IV futures prices are expected to be much less enthusiastic, ranging from $11.15 per CWT for April to $11.48 by December. The outlook for Class IV prices is reflecting a depressed outlook for butter prices, and anticipation of a lower support price for nonfat dry milk. That said, there may still be opportunities to lock in favorable futures prices for both Class III and IV.

There are rumors circulating that the House and Senate Agricultural Conference Committee has struck a tentative "deal" to have a national dairy countercyclical program that will provide a monthly payment to dairy farmers equal to 45 percent of the positive difference between $16.94 and the Boston Class I price. Farmers shipping 2.4 million pounds of milk per year, or less, will qualify for 100 percent of this payment.

Note: I will be traveling overseas the next few weeks, doing volunteer work in Yugoslavia for VOCA (Volunteers in Overseas Cooperative Assistance). Therefore, my weekly dairy market report will be available again on May 17. See you then!

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY for week ending Apr. 26. RECEIPTS: Auctions: This Week 224,600, Last Week 213,800. Direct: This Week 50,700, Last Week 44,700. Video/ Internet: This Week 43,400, Last Week 7,600. TOTAL: This Week 318,700, Last Week 266,100. Old Format: This Week 122,800, Last Week 110,300, Last Year 191,000. This week's reported auction volume included 54% over 600 lbs and 49% heifers. Compared to last week, feeder steers and heifers sold steady to 3.00 lower. April live futures closed 17 points firmer Monday, possibly due to a combination of last Friday's cattle on feed report and fading attention on the Florida woman with human form of mad cow disease over the weekend. However, declining prices on live cattle over the past few weeks did little to lend support for feeders, and left buyers and sellers in a tough situation as they are looking for direction, with no clear answers.

Despite lower prices this week, demand for feeders have ranged from light to mostly moderate, however better than expected. A lot of people are waiting and speculating as to the next cattle on feed report. Much needed rain has fallen across major grazing areas across the south central regions of the U.S. the past couple of weeks, with more predicted over the weekend. This much needed rain has helped increase the demand for grass cattle. On the other hand, dryness still plagues other parts of the country.

Feedlots have held cattle as long as they can over the past few weeks, with no other options now but to sell. This was evident this week, especially in the south, as the result was a much larger showlist. Rumors of 64.00 bids on Tuesday came true Wednesday as Feedlots in the south traded cattle 1.00-3.00 lower at 64.00 with northern areas trading at mostly 104.00 in moderate to active trading. Showlists were pretty much cleaned up in the southern plains Thursday afternoon, after trading steady to 1.00 lower, with some of these cattle hanging in both southern and northern plants. A huge slap in the face was felt Thursday afternoon as April Live Futures were up 40 points to triple digits in the out months. Adding a little salt to the wound Friday, April live and feeder cattle futures closed up the limit. Seasonal demand still seems to be the most likely favorite with everybody looking towards Memorial weekend.

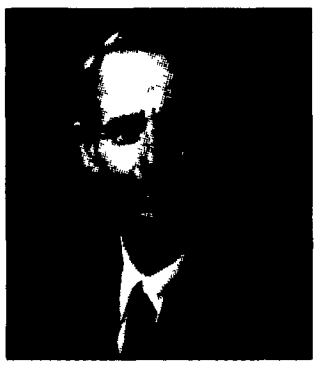
Farm Show Complex Construction Update

PDA Farm Show Complex



Hon. Samuel E. Hayes Jr.
Pa Secretary of Agriculture

Building For The Future – On Schedule

Animal Health Commission, Hardwoods Development Council, Agriculture Law Center Board, and Pennsylvania Fair Advisory Board.

Secretary Hayes has been honored many times for his contributions to the state, with outstanding alumni awards from Penn State, from which he obtained a bachelor's degree and master's in education. Descriptions of his many awards could fill a full page of this newspaper. His influence includes the many thousands of people who regularly read Lancaster Farming and attend the premier, world-class agriculture event, the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

It's hard to believe that 9/11 and all the changes it brought were nearly eight months ago. In the shadow of that, but undaunted, an expansion and renovation of the Farm Show Complex got under way on Sept. 27, 2001.

With Gov. Tom Ridge departing to head up the office of Homeland Security, Lt. Governor Mark Schweiker participated at the groundbreaking ceremony for the start of historic construction at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

The construction is about building for the future. Actually, "building for the future" began months and months before.

"For years and decades, while I served in the House of Representatives, I knew something should be done to upgrade and enlarge the Farm Show Complex. When I became secretary of agriculture, one of my goals was to develop support and seek revenues for new construction that would make it possible to have a world-class Farm Show Complex for agriculture.

I appreciate the governor and state lawmakers for their support of the various construction projects at the Department of Agriculture with the Farm Show project being one of them.

About six months, passing motorists, pedestrians, and visitors to the Department of Agriculture could hear pile-driving sounds, jackhammers breaking up asphalt, and the sounds of heavy equipment traversing the mammoth construction site. But it looked basically flat. Only in the last couple of weeks has steel been going up and giving shape to what (up to now) have been architectural plans on paper.

Dennis Grumbine, director, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture Bureau of Farm Show, said, "The construction is on schedule. The weather since last fall has been helpful and the contractor is moving fast. It took a lot of time and work to pour deep below-ground concrete to support the high above-ground structures. Now everyone can see buildings taking shape."

The new livestock barn and large arena should be completed by September. The new exposition hall and concourse are scheduled to be complete by the end of this year. All new construction is scheduled to be done in time for the 2003 Farm Show in January.

The project also includes upgrades within the current facility. For example, there will be new seating and an upgraded auctioneer block in the Small Arena. A make-over of the Family Living Center is part of the upgrade, so it will be much more accessible and adaptive to special agriculture events. There will be a new 4-H/FFA dormitory which will also include technology for seminars. There will be an upgrade of the current Large Arena.

At the present time, the Farm Show Complex is only a "cool-weather" facility, because it is not air-conditioned. This will change with the upgrades and new construction. It will be a 12-month facility that offers comfortable exposition space for exhibitors and visitors regardless of season or outside temperature.

Managing a construction site is not easy. It would have been less stressful for our Farm Show staff if we just shut down the site for one year because of construction. However, we made the policy decision to continue all regular Farm Show Complex activities and shows despite the construction. This policy best serves agriculture and the general public even though there are some inconveniences for everyone because of the construction. Our employees at the Farm Show are doing a good job working around the confusion that goes with a big construction site.

With just over 250 days until the Farm Show in January, there will be a frenzy of construction activities. These are but the details that came about only because of a goal and a vision.

Years and decades from now, Farm Show exhibitors and visitors will, I hope, look back and say, "They were building for the future. Something very good was done for agriculture."

ronmental practices, a nearly 20-fold increase in farmland preservation funds, a new grasslands reserve program, an environmental quality incentives program for livestock and crop producers, water conservation program, and acreage increases in the conservation reserve and wetlands programs.

- Allows meatpacking corporations to continue owning livestock as before.
- Requires country-of-origin labeling for meat, fish, produce, and peanuts, starting in two years.
- Allows corn, soybean and small grain producers to update yield and base acreage figures.
- Requires importers of dairy products to pay 15 cents per hundredweight to the dairy checkoff program to fund milk promotion activities.
- Expands an adjusted gross revenue insurance program for specialty crop producers, now in effect in six eastern Pennsylvania counties.
- Allocates $405 million for bioenergy initiatives.
- Increases marketing loan rates.

President Bush promised that he would sign the bill.

"I am pleased that the compromise agreement on the farm bill resulted in better balanced commodity loan rates; spending that is no longer front-loaded; and the strongest conservation provisions of any farm bill ever passed by Congress," Bush said in a statement Thursday. "The final provisions of the farm bill are also consistent with America's international trade obligations, which will strengthen our ability to open foreign markets for American farm products. I thank the conferees for their hard work and urge Congress to send the farm bill to my desk promptly for signature to help ensure the immediate and long-term vitality of our farm economy."

Farmer and commodity organizations from across the country registered their reactions to the new bill this week.

"The tentative agreement, while short on specifics, appears to be a positive step in the right direction," said Dave Frederickson, president of the National Farmers Union. "While it does not solve all the challenges we face in rural America, it does provide certainty to farmers and ranchers that an improved safety net will be in place for the next six crop years. It is definitely an imnprovement over current law."

The National Corn Growers Association and American Soybean Association applauded the bill.

Tim Holden, Pennsylvania representative from Schuylkill County and farm bill conferee, said he approved of the final result after weeks of negotiation.

"I feel it's a real good day for northeastern agriculture," he said Thursday, after the bill passed the House.

If approved in the Senate, the bill will go to the President for signing.

Agri-Terrorism Focus Of Ohio State Study

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Just how prepared local and state agencies would be in the face of an agri-terrorism threat is the focus of a new Ohio State University study.

The study, titled "State and Local Preparedness for Agricultural Terrorism," is supported by a one-year $66,000 Ohio Criminal Justice Services grant. The purpose of the project is to bring together representatives from "all walks of agricultural life" to discuss targets for potential terrorism and the appropriate responses to those threats or attacks at the local and state levels.

"Agricultural terrorism can have many sources not only outside this country, but inside as well," said Joe Donnermeyer, an Ohio State criminologist and head of the project. "Agriculture is the state's largest industry and any attack on the industry would be economically damaging. We [illegible] not only must think about threats to our livestock but to all aspects of the food and fiber system. What about water safety, field crops, and retail and wholesale food processing? These are huge areas that must be considered as targets of terrorism."

Donnermeyer, a professor of human and community resource development within the College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences, said the key to preparedness is communication between local and state agencies.

The project involves a series of forums comprised of representatives from Ohio State, the Ohio Department of Agriculture, Ohio Farm Bureau, the Ohio Emergency Management Agency, and the Ohio Veterinary Medical Association, as well as farmers and individuals in the restaurant and

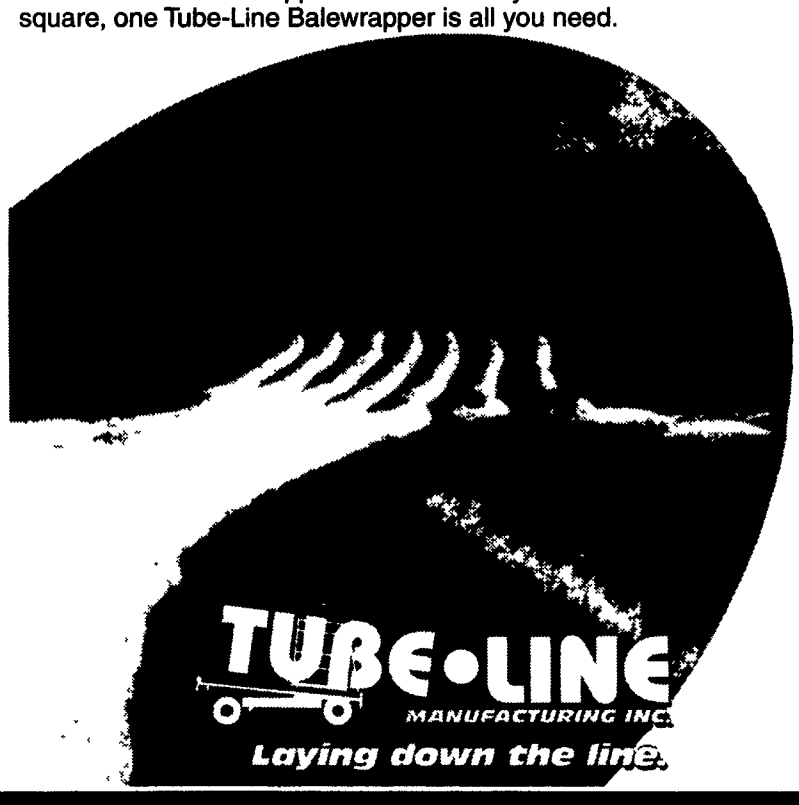
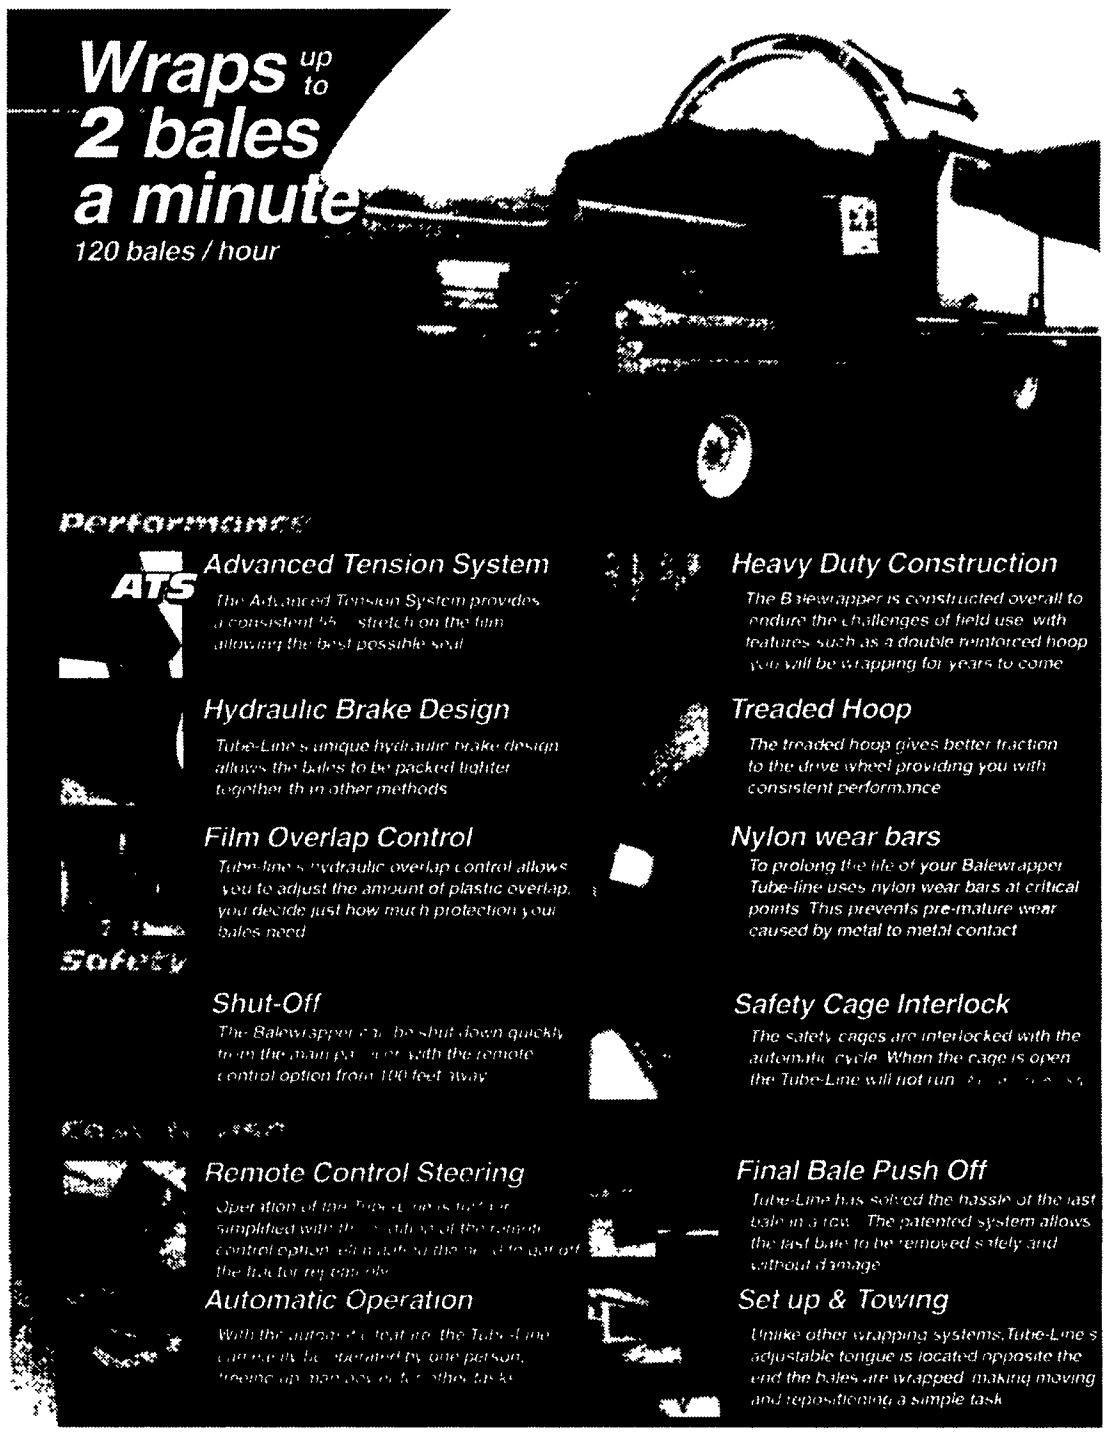
The Tube-Line Balewrapper gives you the power of control. Everyone knows the biggest enemies to baling hay is time and weather. The Tube-Line Balewrapper helps eliminate your dependence on the weather, saves you time and ensures you get the best quality forage.

High quality feed can now be made with a low investment in equipment. Forage is cut, wilted, baled and wrapped air tight with the Tube-Line BAlewrapper. This eliminates the 2-4 days of drying time or expensive silo equipment.

Because the Tube-Line Balewrapper wraps the bales in a continuous line, only the outside circumference of each bale is wrapped. This saves up to 40% of the film used to wrap individual bales, and saves time when unwrapping. The Tube-Line Balewrapper also gives you hydraulic control of the film overlap letting you decide how much to protect your bales.

Time is the other enemy when trying to collect forage. The Tube-Line Balewrapper will wrap up to two bales per minute. And various options are available to match the speed of wrapping to your needs. This frees up your time and allows more time for forage growth. There is a Tube-Line Balewrapper available to fit your needs. From round to square, one Tube-Line Balewrapper is all you need.





Wraps up to 2 bales a minute
120 bales / hour
Performance
ATS
Advanced Tension System
The Advanced Tension System provides a consistent 55% stretch on the film allowing the best possible seal
Heavy Duty Construction
The Balewrapper is constructed overall to endure the challenges of field use with features such as a double reinforced hoop you will be wrapping for years to come
Hydraulic Brake Design
Tube-Line's unique hydraulic brake design allows the bales to be packed tighter together than in other methods
Treaded Hoop
The treaded hoop gives better traction to the drive wheel providing you with consistent performance
Film Overlap Control
Tube-line's hydraulic overlap control allows you to adjust the amount of plastic overlap, you decide just how much protection your bales need
Nylon wear bars
To prolong the life of your Balewrapper Tube-line uses nylon wear bars at critical points. This prevents pre-mature wear caused by metal to metal contact
Safety
Shut-Off
The Balewrapper can be shut down quickly from the main power unit with the remote control option from 100 feet away
Safety Cage Interlock
The safety cages are interlocked with the automatic cycle. When the cage is open the Tube-Line will not run
Remote Control Steering
Operation of the Tube-Line is further simplified with the addition of the remote control option which allows the operator to get off the bale for easy access
Final Bale Push Off
Tube-Line has solved the hassle of the last bale in a row. The patented system allows the last bale to be removed safely and without damage
Automatic Operation
With the automatic option the Tube-Line can easily be operated by one person, freeing up man power for other tasks
Set up & Towing
Unlike other wrapping systems, Tube-Line's adjustable tongue is located opposite the end the bales are wrapped making moving and repositioning a simple task

The realities are, noted Hudnut, that "we live in the time of the regional city." Planners who help to implement sensible growth, such as the Chicago Metro Planning Commission, apply a "balanced" growth that encompasses the needs of the population surrounding the city.

In Chicago itself, in the last 20 years, population grew at only 4 percent, basically unchanged. But urbanized land use grew by 60 percent — 15 times the population growth.

Hudnut, who served as mayor of Indianapolis, Ind., for 16 years, advanced the city's new "Unigov" form of merged governance with Marion County. He helped revitalize downtown Indianapolis and served as president of the National League of Cities.

Hudnut said that a similar, recent vote to "merge" the planning commissions — in effect, the governance — of Jefferson County and Louisville, Ky. has occurred.

Since 1996, Hudnut has been senior resident fellow at the Urban Land Institute and has studied the effects of sprawl on the lifestyles of those who live in the regional cities.

Speakers at the smart growth conference in Millersville, from left, Will Selman, Lancaster County Planning Commission; Geoffrey Anderson, division director, development, community and environment division, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency; and Mark Hackenburg, registered landscape architect, owner and vice president, RGS Associates, Inc.

Mike Skelly, Lancaster County Planning Commission, provides information about a special model demo at the conference.

Hudnut explained that, traditionally, people would live in cities and towns, near their place of work. But over time, like a "constellation" in the sky, nodes of individual development appeared, and people began living their lives independent of the city. When the schools and shopping malls left the cities, people followed, preferring to live near those places important to them.

Smart Growth, Hudnut said, includes sound planning and land-use techniques to make more effective use of the infrastructure. He noted one American Farmland Trust study that noted we were "losing two acres a minute to development in the U.S.," he said. Sprawl continues to cost the taxpayer "more money everywhere it happens."

Smart growth, the "antidote to sprawl," noted Hudnut, looks at the living environment. "You don't just plop a Wal-Mart down in a traditional town center," he said. "It has to fit!" He noted that large-scale planning takes into account the retail stores, shops, and manufacturing sectors within the context of the smart growth plan.

But the planning does not use government mandates. Instead, "I like to use the word 'guidance,'" said Hudnut. "There's less of the 'heavy hand' of government."

For housing, the collaborative effort called smart growth includes a center to development, a city with a sense of place, a tradition, a personality, and a sense of community.

'It takes patience," Hudnut said, of developing and implementing smart growth. "American people aren't patient. They want instant answers."

For years, there have been several types of people resisting smart growth. They include the CAVE dwellers (Citizens Against Virtually Everything) and the NIMBY people (Not In My Backyard).

Hudnut spoke against the "myths" of smart growth. He noted that it is not a code word for "no-growth," it is not antisuburb, it is not another layer of government regulations, smart growth does sell with its better style of planning, it does not mean growth boundaries, it does not eliminate the need for new roads, it is not bad for business, and does value open space and "trees," he said.

"The region that works together will stay together in the 21st century," Hudnut said.

Lancaster County Commissioner Ron Ford noted before Hudnut's speech that as separate municipalities, "we came in on different ships, but we're all in the same boat now." Smart growth, he noted, could provide a way to "control" the boat to improve the quality of life.

Paul Thibault, county commissioner, noted that "we can't make people change the way they behave," he said, so we "need to refocus on how to use the land."

At the conference, several "hands-on" projects allowed municipal planners to look at tools for smart growth planning, including computer software. One demonstration involved Sim City software, an artificial intelligence program that allows people to become "mayor" and plan out the operations of a computer-constructed simulated city.

Rebecca Secrist, Lancaster County Planning Commission, left, discusses a special project map with Jeanne Sonntag, Lancaster County Water Resources Task Force, at the smart growth conference.

Other projects included regional planning, a way of thinking intelligently about growth through a workshop with a focus on building a community, and topics of interest to municipal officials.

Conference participants spoke about how important it was to bring all stakeholders to the table — including bankers, developers, and the public. One noted it was simply not enough to just get a public notice in the newspaper when smart growth planning takes place, but that the word should be spread door to door.

TIMING THE FIRST CUTTING OF ALFALFA
Paul H. Craig
Extension Agent — Forage Crop Production
Capitol Region

The timing of the first cut of alfalfa offers the greatest opportunity for economic gain or loss or any alfalfa producer. Properly timed, first cut sets the stage for future crop harvests and can significantly affect stand persistence.

In addition, making first cut at optimum forage quality must be the goal of all forage producers. Dairy men and women know the importance of forage quality to profitability. Poor quality forages increase feed costs and limit production of high-producing cows.

First cutting of alfalfa typically comprises 30 to 40 percent of the seasonal yield. For this reason alone, mistakes made at first harvest will have dramatic affects.

Agronomists note that two factors determine the optimum time to harvest first cut. The first factor is the number of rain-free days it takes to complete harvest. Forage producers must begin soon enough to allow for harvest to be completed prior to forage maturity that results in lowered forage quality.

The second factor that initiates spring harvest is the quality of the standing forage crop. Early harvest of alfalfa greatly improves quality factors, but harvesting too early can reduce yields and reduce stand longevity. Many dairy producers intensely manage their alfalfa stands with frequent early harvests and up to five harvests yearly. These individuals plan on rotating alfalfa stands frequently, often after the third year of production. If longer-lived stands are your goals, then your stands must be managed differently.

Management of alfalfa and other perennial forages requires an understanding of the role of plant energy reserves. Energy reserves are important to perennial plants for winter survival and to initiate regrowth following harvest. High-energy reserves support quicker regrowth, which leads to higher yields. In alfalfa, these reserves are stored in taproots. In other legumes, the reserves may be found in low growing stems. In grasses, these reserves are found above ground in the lowest 3 to 4 inches of individual tillers.

In springtime and immediately following harvest, the plants use energy reserves until sufficient growth is able to meet the needs of the developing plant. When this stage is reached, the "extra" energy is directed to the plant reserve storage site for future use. Think of this like a bank account at payday. Storage reserves in alfalfa are usually at their lowest levels two weeks after harvest and at peak levels during bloom.

Agronomists recommend cutting alfalfa from the bud stage to early bloom in order to maximize plant reserves for stand longevity and still produce good alfalfa quality. Many dairy producers, managing alfalfa for higher quality and more cuttings, will harvest alfalfa as soon as a few buds appear. These producers trade higher quality for long-term stand longevity. They ensure top production with optimum levels of soil pH, phosphorous, and potassium. These individuals also monitor closely for alfalfa weevils and potato leafhoppers. Frequently, to ensure energy levels are higher, these producers will allow one summer cutting to reach the first bloom stage before taking a cutting.

The affect of intensely managing alfalfa on stand longevity depends on many factors, including variety, age of stand, fertility, insect pressure, weeds, soil moisture, growing conditions, the environment, and cutting management. Spring growth has the highest tolerance to early cutting from a timing perspective. This factor allows dairy producers to manage first cutting a little more intensely in regards to stage of cutting. However, the timing of spring cuttings can affect stand persistence from the standpoint that it sets up the cutting schedule for future cuts.

For new seedings made in the fall, first cut should be made based on stand vigor. If plants are vigorous and well developed, an early harvest, at bud stage, can safely be made. If plants are small and poorly developed, as many 2001 fall seeding are, it is best to wait until mid-bloom to begin.

First cut of spring seedings should be made 60 to 70 days after emergence (not planting). This will ensure high root reserves of the developing plant. Final cut of new spring seeding should be made prior to Sept. 10 to ensure that the young stand is able to reach maximum energy reserves prior to winter dormancy.

Fall harvest planning is a topic for a future article. For now, start planning for first cut. It will only be a short time away.

51 Complete Week-Long Conservation Training Camps

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Fifty-one county conservation district and USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) employees recently completed one of two different weeklong agricultural conservation training 'boot camps" during the past three weeks at Fort Indiantown Gap and nearby farmland.

The "boot camps" are part of the State Conservation Commission's Agricultural Conservation Technician (ACT) program. The ACT program is funded through the State Conservation Commission by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture from revenues appropriated by state lawmakers and the governor.

In its third year, the ACT program provides training and cost-share funds to county conservation districts to provide dedicated workers to help layout and install conservation best management practices on farms. The ACT program is designed to enhance conservation technical assistance provided to the farm community in Pennsylvania.

State Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes addressed both groups on their first day at boot camp. He reminded them that the purpose of the ACT program and boot camp training is to help agriculture in Pennsylvania to be economically and environmentally sound.

Hayes urged ACT employees to remember that what they do is of critical importance in making it possible for agriculture to continue in Pennsylvania. Nutrient management, odor abatement, water conservation, farmland preservation, risk management, and other conservation issues will be part of successful agriculture in the 21st century. He said that agriculture is not only important to the economy of Pennsylvania and the U.S., but continuation of the industry is an essential and strategic strength of our nation.

Hayes told the "boot camp troops" that they are "front-line ambassadors" for agriculture. They help nurture a friendly relationship between farmers and the general citizenry. He said that those who train at the boot camp and go back to their conservation districts have a civic responsibility to work with farmers and rural neighborhoods so there can be a greater understanding about production agriculture and harmony in our townships.

Training is conducted in the spring of each year, in advance of the fieldwork season. Two different types of training camp are offered through the State Conservation Commission — basic and advanced. The advanced course is split into two disciplines — engineering and agronomy. Senior conservation engineers with the Pennsylvania office of USDA NRCS provide the instruction. The Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts provides administrative support for the boot camp training.

For more information about the ACT program, contact the State Conservation Commission at (717) 787-8821.

Ag Secretary Sam Hayes joins several members of the conservation 'boot camp' conducted by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and State Conservation Commission. Base camp for the training was at Fort Indiantown Gap and nearby farms. Assisting Hayes with the soil probe are, from left, Victor Motts, Monroe County Conservation District; Richard Huether, Blair County Conservation District; Nick Ramsey, Lancaster County Conservation District; Rhandee Dibert, Bedford County Conservation District; Matt Nuss, Union County Conservation District; Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes; Jay Bagley, Sullivan County Conservation District; Kevin Seibert, Lancaster County Conservation District; Carl Bomgardner, farm owner; and Duane Pysher, NRCS grassland management specialist.

Japan Imposes Import Ban On North Carolina

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Japan's Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries (MAFF) told APHIS/USDA that it will impose a temporary import ban on poultry from North Carolina because low pathogenic avian influenza was found in certain poultry flocks in that state.

Poultry from North Carolina is already being conducted at Japan's ports and is not permitted entry. MAFF indicated that the ban will be for 90 days from the date of depopulation and cleaning/disinfection. At this time it is unclear what that date will be.

For Pennsylvania, Japan's 90-day ban terminated April 12 and for Maine the termination date is May 12.

Methuselah Of The Insect World To Emerge In Western Pa.

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — One of the world's most mysterious insects is about to invade the skies over western Pennsylvania, but an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences said it's not a cause for alarm.

Residents of Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Butler, Cambria, Clarion, Crawford, Fayette, Forest, Huntingdon, Indiana, Lawrence, Mercer, Venango, Washington and Westmoreland counties soon will see an emergence of periodical cicadas, commonly but mistakenly called 17-year locusts. "These insects are harmless to people, but they can damage shade trees, fruit trees or high-value ornamentals," said extension entomologist Gregory Hoover.

Damage caused by periodical cicadas occurs during egg-laying. Using the blades of a saw-like device on her abdomen, a female will cut several small pockets in the bark of a twig before depositing 400 to 600 eggs. This process can cause small limbs or seedlings to wilt and may provide an opening for disease. Adults live only a few weeks, but the twig injury they cause may be apparent for several years.

"Periodical cicadas are sometimes called nature's pruners," said Hoover. "Although adult cicadas are difficult to control, nursery owners or others with trees at risk may want to apply registered insecticides around the time mating starts — about 10 days after they first hear the males singing." If a pesticide is used, label instructions should be carefully read and followed.

Other protection methods include covering the crown of valuable trees with a fine mesh or delaying the planting of trees until the adult cicadas are gone, usually in early July.

The periodical cicada is native to North America and exists nowhere else in the world. There are six species of periodical cicadas, three with a 17-year cycle and three with a 13-year cycle. Those found in Pennsylvania are 17-year periodical cicadas.

Adult periodical cicadas are about 1 ½ inches long with reddish eyes and orange wing veins. They are smaller than their cousins, the annual or dog-day cicadas usually seen and heard in the heat of late summer.

Periodical cicada populations — called broods — are identified by Roman numerals. Each brood is classified by the year in which it emerges. The cicadas surfacing this year are members of Brood VIII, which last was seen in 1985. Brood VIII distribution includes 16 counties in western Pennsylvania.

Cicada nymphs spend 17 years from 2 to 24 inches underground, sucking nutrients from plant roots. In late April and May, they burrow to within an inch of the soil surface, where they await an undetermined signal for emergence. If the ground is too damp, they often build small earthen turrets over their holes to protect their escape routes from too much moisture.

When the time is right, usually in late May or early June, the nymphs exit the soil through half-inch holes and climb a foot or more up trees or other objects. Within an hour, they shed their nymphal skins and become adults.

Adult cicadas are clumsy flyers, often colliding with objects in flight. Males begin their constant singing shortly after they emerge, but the females are silent. When heard from a distance, the cicadas' chorus is a whirring monotone, sometimes described as eerie-sounding. On rare occasions when an adult eats, it sucks fluid from small twigs but does not feed on leaves. Ten days following emergence, mating takes place.

Adults live up to four weeks above ground. Six to seven weeks after the eggs are laid, the nymphs hatch and drop to the ground. There, they enter the soil, not to see the light of day for 17 years.

For a free fact sheet on periodical cicadas, visit the Web at http://www.ento.psu.edu/extension/factsheets/periodical—cicada.htm or contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county.

formation since their study began early in 2000. Their data consistently shows average dry matter losses near 10 percent. Information from Brigham Young University shows similar results.

This difference of seven percent of dry matter may not seem significant, but even on a small scale it can mean a large economic difference. Saving an extra seven percent of 1,000 tons of forage valued at $30 per ton is in effect a savings of $2,100 per year. In large storage situations, the difference becomes drastic.

I urge all producers to look into the source of their information before making a decision with such a large effect.

Pa. Grange Supports Vector 21-41

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Grange supports Vector Tobacco's request for a non-regulated status of its product, Vector 21-41.

Vector 21-41 is a tobacco genetically engineered to reduce nicotine by limiting the nicotine in the roots of the plant. The target market for Vector 21-41 is cigarette smokers 35 years of age and older who want to quit smoking.

To qualify for a non-regulated status, a crop must be grown and monitored for one year prior to petitioning for a non-regulated status.

According to William A. Steel, master of the Pennsylvania State Grange, Vector 21-41 is grown in Pennsylvania. Small farmers in the southeastern-part of the state grow the majority of the crop. The potential for the crop to yield weed growth as well as its impact on insects have been monitored and proven acceptable. Cross-pollination is not a threat because plants are topped prior to the blooming stage. Vector 21-41 must be grown several hundred feet away from other tobacco crops.

In a letter to the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service Division of the USDA, Steel wrote: "The Pennsylvania State Grange supports the proposed determination of non-regulated status for Vector Tobacco's Vector 21-41, a tobacco genetically engineered for reduced nicotine."

New Farmers, New Generation

Marion Bowlan

Pennsylvania Farm Link

Who Gets Grandma's Wedding Quilt?

Last month I talked about transferring the management and assets of the farm business to the next generation and the importance of favoring the farming child. Today I want to discuss ways to transfer nontitled property — furniture, antiques, photos, dishes, linens, jewelry, and that quilt grandma got from her mother on her wedding day.

Let's use the example we used last time with three equally loved children, a son who is an accountant, a daughter who is married to another farmer, and a single younger daughter who will take over your farm. If the youngest daughter receives the farm, what are your options for your other two children?

What can you do for them that will make them feel special? How should your children be treated in the distribution of nontitled property?

I would suggest you begin the process with the following guidelines:

- Everyone is different
- More than one method of transferring nontitled property may be used
- There will be conflict
- More options are available if transfer of property occurs prior to death
- Every method of transfer has a consequence.

Remember that perceptions determine what is considered fair. And fair is not always equal, so how do you manage those perceptions for the best result?

You can begin by making a list of special belongings that you hope to pass on to your children, the reason it, is special to you, who should receive it, and why. For example, I want my older daughter to receive grandma's wedding quilt because it was passed down through three generations on the maternal side of my family, and I want to continue that tradition.

Your children could be requested to draw up a similar list. Ask each child to list family belongings that are special, the reasons why, and how they would feel if someone else received the item. This process should open up the doors of communication but may present you with some unintended challenges or conflicts.

For example, when you tell your children that you intend to give your oldest daughter the wedding quilt, your son may believe that he should receive it because its his favorite color and it reminds him of his grandma. Conflict is not necessarily avoided. Hopefully, however, discussion and clarification of the problem and possible solutions will resolve the issues and lead to a better understanding of each family member's personal needs and desires.

Each of us brings our own set of values and beliefs to the table in any discussion of this sort. What we all hope to avoid by opening up this dialogue is discrepancies in expectations and feelings of favoritism brought on my misunderstandings and miscommunication. Having these discussions prior to the reading of your will allows you and your children more options and alternatives.

Finally, check both state and federal laws and with your attorney to determine how tangible personal property can be distributed. For more information on farm transfer planning, contact Pennsylvania Farm Link at (717) 664-7077. An 80-page farm transfer guide is available at a cost of $15 (includes postage and handling) or visit our Website at www.pafarmlink.org.

Next time we'll examine "growing your business naturally."

Dairy Herd Performance Analysis Training Set

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Industry professionals with some experience in using Dairy Comp 305 can register to participate in an interactive workshop designed to sharpen their skills in using the program to evaluate and troubleshoot dairy herd performance. The workshop is scheduled for May 14 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The workshop will be conducted in the computer lab in the Agricultural Sciences and Industry Building at Penn State University. This training session is a component of the DHIA Information Analysis Training that has been developed by Penn State Dairy Alliance and faculty members from the Department of Dairy and Animal Science and the Veterinary Science Department.

The goals of this program are to: 1) improve participants' understanding of the key indicators of herd performance; 2) teach participants how to interpret paper DHIA reports using the key performance indicators; and 3) improve participants' skills in analyzing DHIA records through the use of various computer information systems.

Industry professionals interested in attending this session should have some experience in using Dairy Comp 305 and a basic understanding of how to interpret DHIA information. Participants in this workshop will use Dairy Comp 305 to analyze a case study herd in a small group setting. Groups will present the results of their analyses, followed by a discussion of the results.

Registration is now being accepted for the May 14 workshop. The registration fee is $95. Individuals interested in attending this workshop should contact Dairy Alliance at (888) 373-PADA or e-mail Brad Hilty at HYPERLINK "mailto:bhilty@psu.edu" bhilty@psu.edu . Participants of the workshop will be eligible for continuing education credits for the American Registry of Professional Animal Scientists.

Undergraduate Students Awarded Internship Scholarships

Robert J. Miller Jr., Nicole D. Martz, and Joshua Elliott, all eighth-semester undergraduate students, were each recently awarded 2001 Penn State Poultry Science Internship Scholarships by the Department of Poultry Science.

Made possible by support to the Department from the U.S. Poultry and Egg Association Harold E. Ford Foundation, the purpose of the scholarship program is to help promote internships and careers in the poultry industry. Miller, a poultry technology and management major, interned at Tyson Foods, Inc. New Holland Complex, New Holland, where he acquired experience in several areas, including quality assurance, wastewater treatment, hatchery management, and live production.

Martz, an animal sciences major, and Elliott, a poultry technology and management major, both had internships at Wenger Feeds, Inc., headquartered in Rheems. Martz spent time with the flock service department, on layer complexes, and in other areas of the egg production division. She also had the opportunity to help manage personnel at a one million-bird complex and participate in a fly control research study.

Elliott's internship program included such experiences as layer complex management, poultry service laboratory related functions, feed production, and numerous other allied tasks. All three students plan to pursue a career in the poultry industry following graduation in May.

Penn State Increases Regional Extension Poultry Programming Efforts

The extension educational programming efforts of the Department of Poultry Science expanded both north and south in 2002.

As co-sponsors of the North Atlantic Poultry Health and Management Conference (in Portsmouth, N.H. March 20-21) and the Maryland Nutrition Conference (in Timonium, Md. March 27-28), Penn State is becoming more of a regional player in extension poultry programming.

Invitations to become a planning partner in both of these outstanding meetings were extended last year in recognition of Penn State's growing numbers of poultry scientists and avian health professionals in both the Department of Poultry Science and the Pennsylvania Animal Diagnostic Laboratory at University Park. In contrast, the overall pool of poultry positions in the Mid-Atlantic and New England regions continues to decline as a result of mergers of Poultry Science Departments in Maryland, Virginia (VPI), and New York (Cornell), combined with cutbacks in poultry programs in New England. The latter region was once a leading poultry producing area in the U.S.

Information on these and other meetings can be found in the calendar section of our new departmental poultry extension Website http://ulisse.cas.psu.edu/ext/Default.html. Lastly, as a reflection of its new regional base, the Maryland Nutrition Conference will become the Chesapeake Nutrition Conference in 2004.

Club Receives Honor In Atlanta

The Penn State Poultry Science Club received the Best Scrapbook Award for the third year in a row at the International Poultry Exposition in Atlanta, Ga. in January 2002. The scrapbook captured all of the club's 2001 activities in pictures and text. Congratulations to the Club members as well as co-advisers Dirk Wise and Phil Clauer!

State Senate Passes Sanitation Standards Bill

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — With a few technical amendments, Senate Bill 1325, Sen. Mike Waugh's (R-York) public health policy legislation, which calls for sanitation standards for petting zoos and agricultural fairs, is one step closer to becoming law.

Not only did the Senate pass the bill with a unanimous vote, all the members also agreed on an amendment that would move the effective date up one year to July 1, 2003.

"The support from every Senator shows the importance of this public health issue. I hope that it meets the same success and support as it proceeds through the House," expressed Waugh.

In addition to the sanitation standards, Waugh's legislation also calls for educational material to be available to inform the public about risks and prevention methods relating to the approximately 75 zoonotic diseases, which are transmitted from animals to humans. An established veterinary-client-patient relationship would also be required, which serves as the first line of defense against infection.

"Ultimately, it is our goal to make visits to agricultural exhibitions a more safe and enjoyable experience," stated Waugh.

PASS To Measure Acreage And Yields

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — What are the crops going to yield in 2002? Each crop season is started with blind expectations.

In Pennsylvania, the final yield for grain corn in 2001 was 98 bushels per acre, up 29 bushels per acre when compared to 2000. For soybeans, the 2001 yield, down almost 20 percent less than 2000's yield, was estimated at 35 bushels per acre. For small grains, the final estimates for wheat and barley stood at 52 and 65 bushels per acre, respectively. The information just mentioned are a few examples of the statistics that are produced from our monthly agricultural yield survey. The yield surveys allows a monthly tracking of production based on conditions at the first of each month.

The Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service will once again be conducting its yearly Agricultural Yield Survey starting in May with questions on winter wheat plantings, yield and hay stocks and finishing in November with final corn and soybean yields. This monthly survey will begin at the start of each month for seven months. As with all surveys conducted by the National Agricultural Statistics Service, individual operator information is kept strictly confidential and is used only with other reports to establish county and state level statistics.

Farmer responses to the ag yield surveys are used to generate state and national yield and production forecasts for major field crops. Production forecasts give an important advance warning of the size of each crop in Pennsylvania and across the nation. In addition, contract harvesters, transportation companies and storage facilities have advance notice to prepare to handle a large volume. Or in the case of a small crop, our ag yield report warns about the possible need to plan for alternate livestock feed sources or farmer assistance programs such as the 1999 Drought Assistance Program.

Results of this survey will be released from Washington, D.C. The survey results will be sent to anyone requesting the information in the Keystone Ag Digest. This is a bimonthly publication and will be received within a few weeks of the actual release date. Reports may be obtained on the actual release dates via the Internet at http://www.usda.gov/nass.

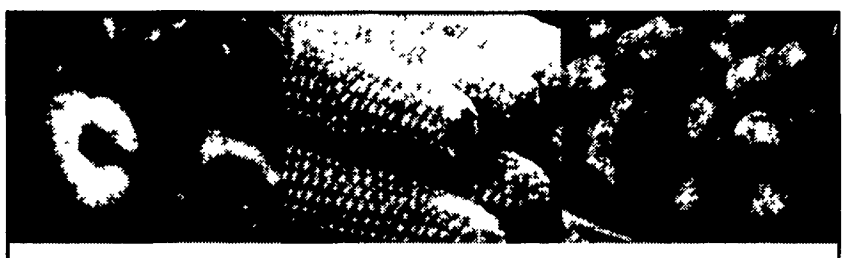
FARMERS The Best In The Field



Start your plants off right with Messenger

Messenger® is a unique new compound that increases crop yields while improving overall plant health and vigor. Messenger is made from a naturally occurring protein (harpin) that triggers processes inside the plant that activate the plant's own defense and growth systems. Plants activated by Messenger exhibit a higher rate of photosynthesis, which in turn enhances nutrient uptake. As a result, Messenger treated plants grow faster and stronger. Messenger also activates the plant's natural defenses so they are better able to fend off a broad spectrum of bacterial, viral, and fungal diseases. Bottom line: healthier plants, higher yields.

Give your plants the strongest start possible—apply Messenger before they leave the greenhouse, or if they are direct seeded, soon after emergence when plants have at least two true leaves. Make repeat applications to maintain a higher level of growth and protection.

To find out how Messenger can add to your bottom line, contact EDEN, your local ag supplier, or one of these certified Messenger retailers:

A NEW APPROACH TO EVALUATE TEACHING QUALITY

Ronald S. Kensinger
Department Of Dairy And Animal Science
Penn State

This is an era of increasing scrutiny of the value of investment in higher education, and a time when many families and legislators want to know if public institutions of higher learning are taking their teaching mission seriously.

How do we know a good teacher when we see one?

Traditional methods of evaluating teaching at the college or university level rely on data such as the number of courses and the number of students taught and data from surveys in which students are asked how well they liked the course and whether the instructor has mastered the subject matter.

Many of us would argue, however, that the more appropriate questions to ask are: How much did students learn? Or, how well can the student taking the course apply the material to new problems?

This shift in thinking is important as there are data to show that student evaluations of courses and instructors can be biased by the entertainment value of the teacher, or by how easily the instructor grades. Therefore, the focus of evaluation of teaching should really be placed on the quantification of student learning.

One mechanism to do this is through the use of an examination at the beginning of the semester (called the preexam), and another examination using the same questions at the end of the semester (the postexam). The difference in the score a student achieves from the beginning to the end of a semester is a measure of what they have learned.

This takes the focus off the entertainment value of the instructor, and eliminates the bias offered by grade inflation in a course. I have used this system to evaluate my own teaching in Animal Science 301 ("Principles of Animal Nutrition") and Animal Science 427 ("Milk Secretion") over the last few years, and have found it to be somewhat humbling, but also very useful to evaluate my own approaches to teaching.

There are several key elements to make this process work. First, I believe the preexam and postexam should be given like a "pop quiz" or unannounced in class, so that teacher measures the knowledge the student will take away the class, and not measure what they "crammed for" the night before the exams. Secondly, the teacher must make very clear to students at the time the exams are given that their scores have no bearing on their grade for the course. The point is to encourage the students to relax and give honest answers, recognizing that many of the questions will be completely foreign at the preexam stage. Thirdly, the exam should be designed in a way that the students can take it quickly, and the instructor can grade it quickly, or it will take up too much valuable classtime and after-class time. The quizzes I use are typically 20-25 questions long, and require students only 10 minutes to complete.

I have used this tool with more than 500 students in recent years, and found it to be helpful in my teaching. My data shows that students will improve their performance very significantly from the beginning to the end of the semester. If a class, on average, does not answer a question particularly well, I know that I need to reevaluate how that material was taught before the next semester.

I have also found statistically significant correlations between student's scores on the preexam and final course average, and the postexam and final course average. This simply demonstrates that learning is incremental, and that this postexam tool is quite accurate in measuring what students know.

What are the changes I have made as a result of this exercise? A good science teacher should systematize knowledge, and not simply present the parts. If the class does not perform well on postexam questions that relate to "big-picture" concepts, then I will generally spend more time on those concepts, or recapitulate those concepts more frequently in subsequent semesters. In other cases I have rewritten entire class lectures to present material in a more user-friendly way. These approaches are generally successful, as shown by better performance by subsequent classes.

At Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, we take our responsibility of teaching very seriously, and want to do our best in mentoring the young people who come to us for an education. The use of pre and postexams is one method to truly quantify what students learn, and to maintain rigor in the classroom.

After all is said and done, our youth deserve the best we educators have to offer, and we know that parents and citizens need to have confidence in their investment in us.

Chester-Delaware Farm Bureau Conducts Banquet

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

ATGLEN (Chester Co.) — Farm Bureau members from Chester and Delaware counties met last week for their annual spring banquet.

The banquet, conducted at the West Fallowfield Christian Day School, drew approximately 130 members.

After dinner several elected officials said a few words about farming issues. Sen. James Gerlach addressed key issues important to the agriculture community.

A water resource bill under consideration in the House and Senate, for example, was first on his agenda. "In essence, what we're trying to do is work off a (formerly conducted) study," he said. "We don't, in Pennsylvania, have a solid understanding of what our groundwater resources are."

A lot of growth has occurred to impact the availability of groundwater, noted Gerlach. Consequently, an updated state water plan is needed, along with an identification of water resources and voluntary plans to decrease water use.

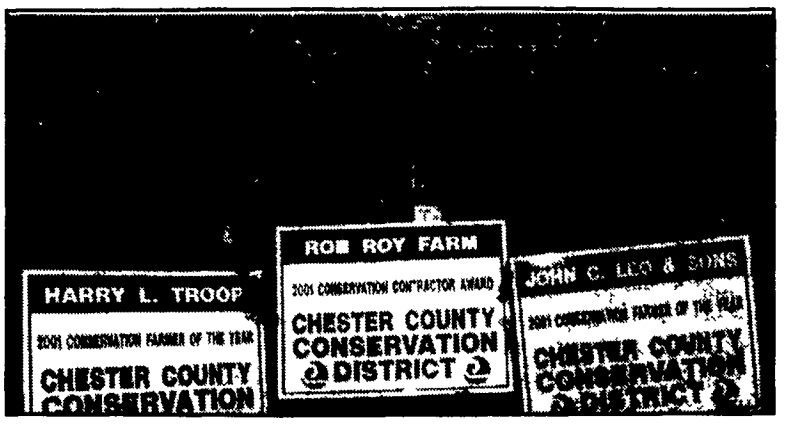
"This is not a plan to have Harrisburg tell everybody how much water they can use," he said. Gerlach is hoping that the bill will soon move out of House and Senate committees to completion.

Additionally, "frivolous ordinances" which limit agriculture are on the minds of many farmers. SB 1413, a recently-introduced bill, allows for the protection of agriculture against unfair discriminatory ordinances. Under the bill producers who contest and win, against townships may collect legal fees.

Legislators urged the producers to contact their local branch of the Farm Bureau if they hear of a township that is thinking about passing an ordinance that is discriminatory against agriculture, as it may be just a matter of the Farm Bureau making a phone call to stop the momentum of the ordinance.

Gerlach also addressed land preservation. SB1114 allows money for matching grants with the county and local municipality and speeds up the process of the regulatory procedure.

Lastly, Gerlach explained that Act 15 allowed for a shift in school income from property taxes to state taxes. Money gained from increased state taxes is sent back to the schools. Many school districts, however, wary of the restrictive wording of the act, have not participated in that shift from property to state taxes as an avenue of getting money for their school.



HARRY L. TROOP
2001 CONSERVATION FARMER OF THE YEAR
CHESTER COUNTY CONSERVATION
ROB ROY FARM
2001 CONSERVATION CONTRACTOR AWARD
CHESTER COUNTY CONSERVATION DISTRICT
JOHN C. LEO & SONS

Besides legislators, representatives of the ag business community gave updates. Diana Hoopes, program assistant for the Ag Development Council and Ag Land Preservation Board, noted that in excess of 14,500 acres have been preserved in Chester County, with more than 1,000 under agreement of sale. Also, 144 farms are preserved in perpetuity by the Chester County Agricultural Land Preservation Board, she said.

The state director's report, given by George Moyer, included news about the six group representatives who recently went to Washington, D.C., to discuss agriculture issues with legislators. Also on April 8 several members went to Harrisburg for a rally and also to speak with legislators.

"Look for opportunities beyond the regular," said Ben Prout, Landenburg, to the producers.

"Get out of that rut of the standard and look beyond it if you want to continue."

Prout and his wife, Jill, not only learned more about being spokespeople for agriculture, but Jill also participated in the Young Farmer and Rancher Discussion Meet while they were at the organization's recent leadership conference in Lexington, Ky. They are members of the Young Farmer and Rancher State Committee.

The conservation district recognized several area producers with awards honoring their conservation practices.

John Leo, Conservation Farmer of the Year, has been in the mushroom industry since 1972. Recently, however, he sold his farm in Avondale to begin a mushroom operation in Oxford.

A district cooperator since 1996, Leo has installed a wastewater collection system. According to Leo, the system collects washdown runoff that is then spray-irrigated. The 120-acre farm hosts the 160,000 square-foot mushroom building.

The 2001 Conservation Contractor honor went to Rob Roy Farm, Nottingham, an operation that combines excavating and farming. A district cooperator since March 1974, Robert E. Rohrer is joined by his son, Ryan in constructing conservation practices throughout the Chester County area.

In addition to excavating, they farm 1,000 acres of corn, soybeans, wheat, and barley.

Also Conservation Farmer of the Year went to Harry and Dorothy Troop, Cochranville. Their son, David, accepted the award. The Troops, who have been district cooperators for 35 years, farm 120 acres and have 60 dairy cows. Grassed waterways, terraces, a waste storage system, and riparian buffers are also part of the family's operation.

Holstein Association Names New Captains

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — National Holstein Association CEO John M. Meyer recently announced the promotion of Andrew King, Dave Paddon, and Steve Peterson as tri-captains of the association's regional representative team.

All three will maintain their responsibilities as regional representatives, but each will have management duties in their part of the country. King will oversee activities in the west, Paddon in the east, and Peterson in the midwest. Each of the captains has strong Holstein Association roots.

Andrew King of Port Orchard, Washington, joined the association in 1993. A graduate of the University of Vermont, King majored in animal science. While a student, he served as president of the Dairy Club and was a member of the University's dairy judging team. In 1992, he served as a teaching assistant for the school's dairy judging class.

Dave Paddon of Pavilion, New York, has been employed as a regional representative for Holstein USA for nine years in western New York and northern Pennsylvania. Prior to joining Holstein USA, he served as a herdsman at a large dairy in New York and worked for a national artificial insemination organization. Paddon is a member of the National Farm Animal Identification and Records (F.A.I.R.) Team which is working to implement a national identification program.

Steve Peterson brings 19 years of Holstein Association experience to his new leadership assignment. A resident of Wadena, Minnesota, Peterson served as a classifier in his early years of employment and for the past 14 years has been the regional representative serving members in Minnesota, North Dakota, and South Dakota.

According to Peterson, "The implementation of the tri-captain concept. . . will not only save the association money, but it will also build a strong team approach to delivering services to our members."

The national Holstein Association Regional Representative Team also includes Mel Hertzler of Texas, Darin Johnson of Colorado, Glenn Sageser of Kentucky, Tony Snyder of Pennsylvania, Bob Wilson of New York, and Lyle Zimmer of California.

Meyer is pleased with the organization's new tri-captain structure and the entire Regional Representative Team.

"Each of these representatives is dedicated to the Holstein Association and contributes strongly to improving our programs and services to members," he said.

Grain Board, Mid-Atlantic BioFuels Pleased With Resolution Passage

EDGEWATER, Md. — Members of the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board (MGPUB) and Mid-Atlantic BioFuels are pleased with the passage of a joint resolution concerning ethanol production in Maryland.

Crossfiled, HJ 33 and SJ 18, urge the departments of Economic and Business Development, Agriculture and the Maryland Energy Administration to provide financial and technical support for the construction of fuel grade ethanol manufacturing plant.

The Mid-Atlantic BioFuels Project is working to bring ethanol production to Maryland. The Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board (MGPUB) recently funded a feasibility study showing favorable results that Maryland and the surrounding region could support a 15-million-gallon-per-year ethanol manufacturing plant.Since releasing those results, the MGPUB formed a working group of farmers along with several other interested members in the community. This group, Mid-Atlantic BioFuels, has since moved into the business plan development phase. The business plan should take approximately six months to complete.

"The passage of this ethanol resolution will prove to be significant to the success of this project. It sends a strong message to potential investors that Maryland will embrace ethanol production. The state has recognized that a barley based ethanol plant will be good for the environment, good for the rural economy and will help to reduce our dependence on foreign oil," said Robert Hutchison, a member of the MGPUB and chairman of Mid-Atlantic BioFuels.

House Directs Conferees To Adopt Country-Of-Origin Meat Labeling

WASHINGTON, D.C. — For the first time, the U.S. House of Representatives went on record supporting mandatory country-of-origin labeling for fresh meats, fruits and vegetables today. By an overwhelming voice vote April 24, the House directed its farm bill conferees to adopt the Senate's labeling language.

"Farmers Union commends the House for recognizing the strong producer and consumer support for the Senate's mandatory country-of-origin labeling provisions and for directing farm bill conferees to include them in the next farm bill," said NFU President Dave Frederickson.

Multiple national surveys indicate that 86 percent of Americans prefer country-of-origin labeling for meat products. Consumer surveys also show more than 70 percent of produce shoppers support country-of-origin labeling for fruits and vegetables. In Florida, where such labeling has been the law for more than 20 years, more than 95 percent favor produce origin labeling in stores.

As the Farm Bill Conference Committee continues deliberation on this and other issues, Farmers Union is encouraging conferees to adopt the Senate's mandatory country-of-origin labeling for fruits, vegetables, meats, fish and peanuts. The organization also stands firm by the Senate language that would only allow U.S. labels on products from plants and animals, born, raised and processed in the United States.

Chimtek Inner Liners are made of volcanic pumice and high-temperature refractory cements. Its round shape provides even temperature inside flue and contributes to efficient flow of smoke and flue gasses. The volcanic pumice in Chimtek liners adds considerable insulating value.

All three chimneyliner systems distributed by DS Machine Shop are of super design, super performance, and super value. With all their advantages these chimney systems often cost no more than ordinary chimneys. Write or call us for more specific liner information.

Pa. Guernsey Breeders Meet

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Awards, queens, and the secretary of agriculture highlighted the annual Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders Banquet April 26-27.

The two-day event included awards for the 2001 All-Pennsylvania production awards, and top milk producers in the state.

Terri Johnson won both the George W. Snyder Award and the Sewickley Trophy. Aaron Gable took home the John Brachman Award for Snider Homestead Farm. Gable was the grand champion at the 2002 Pennsylvania Farm Show.

A first-time award, the Albert Hack Service Award, went to Dale Oliver. Albert Hack was the forerunner of the milk shake booth at Ag Progress Days.

"He made a lot of our Guernsey projects possible," said Melissa Kohler. "And, it seem appropriate we should give the award to one of our most faithful workers, Dale Oliver."

Last year, the milkshake booth made the Guernsey Breeders more then $9,000.

Julie Sollenberger, candidate for Pennsylvania State Guernsey Queen, told the story of her first Guernsey calf, which she raised to become a prize-winning cow. The two attended more then 100 fairs and shows. Her story brought tears to the eyes of many in the audience.

Winners in the All-Pennsylvania open contest for 2001 included:

- Greenlea Loral Shelly, a junior calf, owned by Hollow View and Warwick Manor Farm with a junior calf.
- Marshdene Magicman Belle, an intermediate calf, owned by Spencer M. Weimer, an intermediate calf.
- Trotacre Tyler Terri, a senior calf, owned by Travis Trotter.
- Sniders Putter Sophie, a summer yearling heifer, owned by Kendy Gable.

- Rutter Bros./Enhancers Lily, a 4-year-old owned by Terri Johnson.
- Cedar Fringed Altann, a 5-year-old owned by Aaron Gable.
- Sniders Fayettes Horizon, a 6-year-old owned by Aaron Gable.

Hollow View Loral Mill, best bred and owned by Scott and Elsie Wolff.

Production awards went to:

- Milk, Twin Brook Farm for eight cows with 19,882 pounds of milk, 800 fat and 630 protein.
- High herd in 2001 for butterfat and protein, Rutter Bros. 29 cows with 19,808 milk, 884 fat, and 666 protein.
- High cow for milk and protein in 2001, Paradise Acres Jay Dana, owned by Mark and Warren Pifer, 26,454 milk, 1,078 fat, and 893 protein.
- High cow for butterfat in 2001, Rutter Bros., Enhancer Lily, owned by Terri Johnson, 25,365 milk, 1,302 fat, and 811 protein.

Top milk producers in 2001 for each age group were as follows:

- 2-year-old Coco, Fava Brothers.
- 3-year-old Paradise Acres Jay Dana, Mark and Warren Pifer.
- 4-year-old Pansy Fava Brothers.
- 5-year-old, Rutter Bros. Magic Cindy, Rutter Bros.
- 6-year-old, Parsons Farm Telestars Tabby, Todd Parsons.

The dinner was followed by a craft auction sponsored by the Guernsey youth.

Dale Oliver was presented with the first Albert Hack Service Award by Melissa Kohler.

Julie Sollenberger, candidate for Pennsylvania Guernsey Queen told the story of her first Guernsey calf.

Mark Pifer and John Marchezak both took home production awards. Marchezak was representing Twin Brook Farms.

From Tulips To Butterflies To Mums, There Is Always Color At Hershey Gardens

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Lancaster Co.) — To most people, the town of Hershey is synonymous with chocolate. However thousands of visitors to Hershey Gardens, 23-acre display of flowers, trees, shrubs, and themed areas, have found that chocolate is not the only attraction that makes the town sweet.

Administered by the M.S. Hershey Foundation, a nonprofit education organization, the gardens were constructed upon Milton S. Hershey's instructions for a 3½-acre rose garden. The garden opened to the public in June 1937 and drew so many visitors that Hershey decided to increase the garden and expand the varieties of flowers displayed.

The garden quickly grew to 23 acres and by 1955 more than 42,000 roses were present, followed by a collection of maples, peonies, hollies, and evergreen plants, besides six theme gardens, walkways, and a seasonal flower garden.

In 1996 a restoration projected returned the rose garden to its original appearance. Today the rose garden includes 7,000 roses. Roses, in fact, bloom on the grounds from June through October.

Other construction included a Butterfly House in 1998 that was created from the framework of an original greenhouse. The mesh enclosure boasts 300 butterflies of 25 North American species.

Thirty thousand tulips give way to a cool-color annual display that is offset by a hot-color summer annual arrangement. The diversity of heights and textures of the annual bed give it appeal, said Susan Klein, public relations coordinator.

The summer annual display contains 12,000 plants that are bolstered by 500 chrysanthemums for the fall season.

"The nice thing about the garden is that there is a succession of blooms so visitors can keep coming back," said Klein.

In addition, a Japanese garden, arboretum, rock garden, herb garden, and perennial garden round out the displays that walkways take visitors through.

To have adequate time to "stop, explore, sit down and enjoy" the gardens, "it takes about two hours to really get the full effect" of the garden, she said.

The season begins in late March through the end of October. Although the summer is, understandably, the busiest season, "membership and local visitors make it a steady stream," said Klein.

With the onset of spring, "we're thrilled to be open," said Klein. In March the part-time gardening staff returns, along with nearly 200 volunteers. Seven employees, including administration and full-time gardeners, work full-time at the Gardens.

Approximately 30,000 tulips color the landscape of the gardens in the spring.

The Butterfly House has lent itself to the educational programs that are presented there.

While younger children may act out the butterfly life cycle and watch a caterpillar, other elementary students explore the difference between a moth and a butterfly. All students get to tour the building and experience the hundreds of butterflies.

Now going into its fifth season, the Butterfly House will open June 8 and close mid-October.

Volunteers, dubbed "flight attendants," guide visitors through the host of nectar plants and butterflies.

"It's very magical," said Klein. "As the season progresses it becomes very lush."

The butterflies propagate in the house, so visitors can see where they lay the eggs, watch how they feed, and observe how they move through the caterpillar to the butterfly stages.

Since the foundation has an "education mission," said Klein, the house provides a forum for learning for not only students but also for all ages of visitors.

Because of the success of the Butterfly House in bringing Tulips of the "fan garden" surround a trellised sitting area.

This garden re-creates a garden established by Milton Hershey's wife. A few of the plants were from her original garden.

Many areas in the garden such as this one are popular for weddings.

On Being a Farm Wife
(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Flipping through an old magazine last week, I came across an article which put meaning into the phrase "stumbled onto something."

That tale related how two brothers taking cows out to pasture on a Maine farm noticed an especially pretty rock which a cow kicked up as she plodded ahead. One boy picked up the stone, tucked it into his pocket and took it home. His father, upon examining the find, suspected it was something special.

Before long in that year of 1875, the area of Deer Hill, Maine, was swarming with amethyst seekers, many of them successful in finding natural caches of the precious gems. In fact, the area proved to be a veritable treasure trove of amethyst, and reportedly remained a popular destination for gem seekers through recent years.

We've been scouring the fields recently for stones, but none have proved to be precious — or even semi-precious gems. What we have amassed instead is a treasure-trove of good, old York County field stones, an especially bumper crop this year pulled to the surface by the use of a deep-slice, minimum-tillage implement.

If we were good New Englanders, the loads of field stone would have been hauled to the edges of the fields to build those picturesque, meandering stone walls. Being good York Countians instead, we are "saving" them for later use (same reason we have a shop full of things we are saving, an attic full of things we are saving, a basement full...you get the idea).

If field stones ever become valuable, we will be hoarding a major windfall. But if we keep picking the rocks out of our hills, will the fields eventually look like the flat prairies of Nebraska?

Continuing the search for precious finds, I went scanning the ground around the yard and gardens. And found...

...asparagus. April's preview of July stirred the asparagus into an early wakeup. Now several years old, the asparagus patch has thrived on liberal doses of manure — not a sparse commodity here — and sends up tender, succulent shoots fatter in diameter than my thumb. Fresh asparagus is a gourmet treat of spring, welcome because of its tasty deliciousness, as well as its overnight appearance at the very time of year when we desperately yearn for fresh, green edibles from the garden.

Not as edible but equally sweet was another unexpected treasure. A pure-white sweet violet sprouted and took root in one of the backyard planters, waving a half-dozen pristine blooms when I spied it. The planters hold colorful impatiens through the summer, but have never purposely hosted wild violets of any shade. Our vigorous volunteer has earned a permanent spot in the perennial bed with some of its kinfolk.

A living treasure from the ground emerged about a week earlier than usual, wiggling out into the chilly air from its snug egg beneath the warm feathers of a mother goose. One plump and fluffy gosling now captures the undivided attention of a pair of Canada geese parents. The pair nearly went bird-serk when Derra Dog opted for a quick swim around "their" pond one recent evening, sending up a terrible fuss.

Since at least two more goose nests are in setting progress, one gosling per nest would probably be just about the right number. While we enjoy their presence, goose proliferation around the region has so exploded that the resulting goose-poop problem is becoming a serious nuisance for public places like parks, playgrounds and golf courses.

Meanwhile, we continue to scan the ground when we walk, ever mindful of the possibility of unexpected treasures.

Or — considering the abundance of cows and geese hereabouts — just watching where we step.

Lancaster Poultry Association Separates Fact From 'Junk Science'

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

CENTERVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Junk science often grabs attention, but scientific soundness is "what we want everyone to take home," said Andy Bradford, president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association.

Bradford made his remarks to more than 50 junior and senior high school educators who attended the annual dinner the poultry association provides for consumer science teachers in Lancaster, Lebanon, and Berks school districts. The dinner and the latest in scientic development were presented at the Comfort Inn, Centerville, April 24.

Dr. Paul Patterson of Penn State, explained the food safety and Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program. Patterson detailed several foodborne illnesses and how the industry works with the government to search for the sources and initiate a risk reduction program.

Helping separate fact from fiction when it comes to food handling poultry and egg products are these people who serve as Penn State Extension resources: Back from left, Dr. Paul Patterson, Dr. Greg Martin, and Andy Bradford. Nancy Wiker, center right, and Martha Zepp.

Food preparation is critical in preventing foodborne illnesses, Patterson stressed. Eggs heated to reach a temperature of 160 degrees or held at 140 degrees for 3½ minutes are approved food safety practices.

Patterson also said the industry is researching pasteurizing shelled eggs to assure food safety. A patent has been attained by a company that puts shelled eggs through a series of cold and hot water baths that result in pasteurization yet maintains the raw egg quality. A slight cloudiness to the egg white results in this process but appears to maintain quality and reduce potential foodborne illnesses.

Dr. Gregory Martin, poultry extension agent, who also serves as a resource for teachers needing information about eggs and poultry, said that the average person eats 260 eggs per year and that Pennsylvania is third largest producer of eggs in the U.S.

Consumers will also be interested in the the following Websites that Martin recommended as a source for poultry and egg recipes and food safety rules:

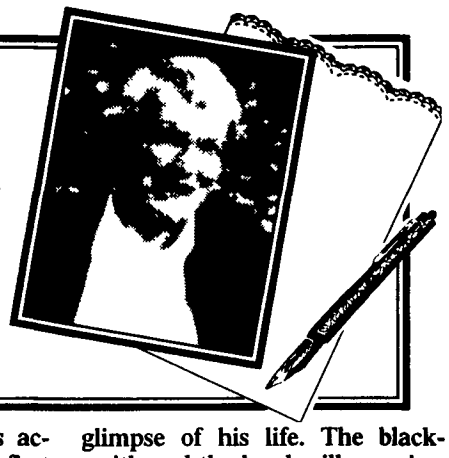
Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser



When I read my father's account book from 1919, the first year that he farmed, it gives me a glimpse of his life. The blacksmith and the local mill were important in his life.

The blacksmith repaired spindles and links beside shoeing his three horses. Bill was his driving horse and the other two pulled the farm machinery.

Under the heading "mill" was the price that he paid to have his grain chopped so that it could be fed to steers which he was fattening for market. He grew wheat, oats and corn on his farm. But, the steady income was from the milk that he sold. There also was a huckster who bought eggs from his barred rock chickens. Even some chickens were sold on a Lancaster market.

Some miscellaneous items that brought in money were potatoes, celery tomatoes, and even a skunk. Two pigs sold for $37 while a bull brought $72. Tobacco probably was the biggest money maker.

But more interesting than these items were his personal expenses. Each trip to the barber shop was 10 cents, toll on the road was another 10 cents, and soap and tooth powder was 42 cents. Other items mentioned were shoe nails, eight cents, gate bolt 35 cents, cough medicine 63 cents and cigars 35 cents.

A hired boy lived with my parents and worked for his keep. They bought clothes for him and four pair of stockings were 76 cents, pair of shoes $3.25, overalls $2 and a shirt was $1.75.

Money was doled out to the hired boy as shown by entries that said: belt 25 cents, car fare 10 cents, toothbrush 10 cents, straw hat 25 cents and "poke money" 25 cents.

As years passed my parents added seven girls to their family. And, as there were no boys to help in the fields, we hoed tobacco, picked up potatoes, and stomped silage in our barefeet in his tin silo. It was a different time.

Did you know that Americans eat out an average of one out of five meals—or 4.2 meals—each week? American households spent an average of $2,116, or $846 per person, on food away from home in 1999, according to the National Restaurant Association.

Today, half of all U.S. food dollars are now spent at restaurants. In general, the households spending the most on food away from home are the households bringing in the highest incomes, households without young children, and households headed by 35-to-54-year olds. The restaurant industry is in its 11th consecutive year of significant growth, and is projected to continue to grow in spite of the current economic downturn.

National surveys show that the driving forces behind this restaurant growth are the daily time squeeze Americans face, along with the steady increase in disposable income.

Could it be that this steady rise in and restaurant eating and commercially prepared meals could be related to the continual rise in the incidence of heart disease, diabetes, and high blood pressure in our country? When people eat out frequently—as the statistics show—they are likely consuming more fat, sodium, and calories than they would by choosing to eat more meals at home. A study reported by the American Dietetic Association (April 1999) showed that women eating out a greater number of times per week report significantly higher total calorie intake as well as higher fat and sodium intakes. However, they did not consume significantly more fiber or calcium in the extra calories consumed.

You can make smart choices when you go out to eat, but it is a difficult thing to do with so many deep fried, artery-clogging temptations on most restaurant menus. Not to mention the oversized portions that many food establishments serve. Even the best-laid plans to eat healthy may go by the wayside when the menu is put before you. Eating out can be hazardous to your health-and to your wallet.

Since the trends forecasted for 2002 show a steady rise in the number of food dollars spent on eating out with sales projected to reach a record $408 billion, it is important to take some action steps for your health.

Here are some suggestions from Sheila Cohn, registered dietitian for the National Restaurant Association, for cutting fat and calories while eating out: 70 percent of customers say they take part of their meal home to turn tonight's dinner into tomorrow's lunch (2 meals for the price of one: What a deal!)

Drink water; diet soda, unsweetened tea, or coffee, instead of regular soda or alcoholic beverages.

Share a dessert with a friend. Half the dessert equals half the fat and calories.

Share an appetizer. Same rule as above applies.

Consider ordering and appetizer and a salad as your meal.

Look for items on the menu that are baked, broiled, grilled, poached, or steamed.

Don't be afraid to ask for special low-fat preparation of a menu item. The restaurant industry is one of hospitality and customer choice. They want to keep your business.

Stop eating when you are full—not when your plate is empty. Listen to the cues your body gives you. Finally, remember not to deprive yourself of foods that you love. All foods can fit into a well-balanced diet.

Restaurants certainly have a place in our lives, and can add to the quality of life—but the home dinner table also provides a place for family to come together for healthy meals while taking a smaller chunk out of our food budget.

For more information on Americans dining-out habits check out the National Restaurant Association website at http://www.restaurant.org.

Succeeding With Rhododendrons, Azaleas

Eric Oesterling
Penn State Extension

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Rhododendrons and azaleas can be the most beautiful spring blooming plants in the landscape. Unfortunately, I see more of them struggling for survival than I see lighting up the landscape with their beauty.

Why are they so hard to grow? These plants are adapted to specific conditions — they are woodland understory or edge plants. They require an acid, well-drained but evenly moist soil. They tolerate neither wet feet nor drought and don't like harsh winds or hot afternoon sun. Plant them in sites that provide these conditions. Morning sun with afternoon shade and protection from winds is ideal.

Incorporate large amounts of acidic organic amendments such as peat moss (not mushroom compost) to the entire area, not just the planting hole. A soil pH of between 4.8 and 5.5 is best. Soil must be well-drained but moisture retentive. Mulch with two to three inches of shredded bark or other good organic mulch to retain moisture and moderate soil temperatures. Water during droughts.

Select plants that will not outgrow the available space. How often do you see large rhododendrons that have overwhelmed the windows they were planted under years ago? There are many improved selections of rhododendrons in all sizes and colors available. Seek them out from better nurseries and don't forget about the beautiful deciduous azaleas including species native to eastern U.S. and hybrids of those species.

Rose Pruning

B. Rosie Lerner
Purdue University

Prepare your garden roses for the growing season. Winter mulch and foam covers should be removed as soon as new growth becomes apparent. Since a late freeze is still possible, it's a good idea to keep the winter mulch nearby for quick protection.

The next step is prune roses to remove any dead, diseased or otherwise damaged canes and to control the quantity and quality of flowers produced. Cut back badly damaged or dead canes down to the base of the plant. Completely remove any suckers or shoots that arise from the rootstock. Slightly damaged canes only need to be cut back to healthy tissue. Be sure to cut back to an outward-facing bud so that new growth will occur toward the outside of the plant. This will ensure good air circulation around the plant, which helps reduce disease infection. To prevent overcrowding inside bush-type roses, aim to have four to eight strong canes cut to a uniform height, which spread out away from the center of the plant in the shape of a V.

Climbing roses are pruned differently, depending on what type of climbers they are. Ever-blooming climbers that bloom throughout the growing season should need little pruning the first few years. As with all roses, remove any dead or weak wood. Thereafter, remove the oldest, longer canes that have become unproductive. Younger canes (2 to 3 years old) produce the most flowers and should be cut back to two-to-three healthy buds.

Climbers that bloom only once should be pruned immediately after blooms fade, since buds form on the previous year's growth. As with raspberries, canes that bear flowers this year should be completely removed to allow space for the new canes to develop and produce buds for next year's season.

Shrub roses rarely need to be shaped, and heavy pruning may destroy their natural beauty. Pruning of shrub roses should be limited to removal of dead or damaged wood and thinning of excessive growth.

Incredible Fish Recipes

Seafood is quick, easy, nutritious, and low in calories.

More and more research supports the health benefits of a diet rich in seafood.

Too many cooks are a bit wary of preparing fish. Here are some fundamentals of seafood cookery from Mid-Atlantic Fisheries:

• Baking — Place fish in a greased baking dish. Keep fish moist and flavorful by brushing occasionally with seasoned oil, sauce or any condiment of your choice. Cover large fish with foil for the first few minutes of baking to retain natural moisture. Bake at 350 degrees until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Cooking time varies according to thickness of fish.

• Broiling — Choose pan-dressed fish, fillets or steaks. Place fish in a single layer on a well-greased broiler pan. Baste well with oil or basting sauce before and during the cooking process. The surface of the fish should be approximately 4-6 inches from the source of heat. Cooking time is usually 8-10 minutes. Turn thicker pieces, such as pan-dressed fish, halfway through cooking time and baste.

• Poaching — Place fish in a single layer in a wide, shallow pan or fry pan. Barely cover with liquid. The liquid for poaching fish may be lightly salted water, seasoned with herbs and spices, milk, or a mixture of wine and water. Simmer fish for 5-8 minutes or until it flakes easily when tested with fork.

• Pan-Frying — Heat ⅛ oil in bottom of heavy frying pan. Place breaded fish in a single layer in the hot oil. Do not overload the pan. Fry fish at a moderate temperature until lightly browned on one side, turn, and cook on the other side until browned.

• Oven-Frying — Dip fish in salted milk and coat with breading mixture of your choice. Place fish in a shallow, well-greased baking pan. Pour melted fat of oil over fish and bake at 500 degrees until fish flakes easily when tested with fork. Fish cooked by this method does not require turning or basting. Cooking time is short.

• Grilling — Choose thick fillets or steak-cut fish, or use a grilling basket for smaller pieces or thinner fillets to make turning easier. Season or baste with your favorite sauce or brush with oil. Grill on high temperature, turning once. Grill just until fish begins to flake when tested with fork, allowing approximately 10 minutes cooking time per inch thickness of fish.

SEAFOOD CASSEROLE

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup light cream
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 tablespoon grated onion
¼ teaspoon celery salt
1 cup lobster or crabmeat
1 cup cooked shrimp
½ cup canned sliced mushrooms
Dash cayenne, optional
Rice, cooked

Heat butter, blend in flour and cream, stir until thickened. Add Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper, onion, seafood, and cayenne. Heat thoroughly.

Keep hot in double broiler. Pour over hot rice when ready to serve OR place cooked layer of rice in buttered casserole. Cover with seafood mixture, layer rice, then seafood mixture. Top with one-third cup sharp cheese, and bread crumbs. Place in 350-degree oven until heated through and cheese is melted or crumbs are golden.

Note: Sauce can be prepared and refrigerated overnight or the completed casserole can be prepared and frozen until ready to use.

When serving 10 people, use 2½ pounds medium shrimp and 1 pound crabmeat. Slice shrimp down the middle which makes it look prettier. If sauce seems skimpy, add more cream to your preference. Sauce should be slightly runny if served with rice.

"This seafood casserole is a real favorite in our family. Whenever I have company for a meal and serve this dish, I always have folks who want the recipe.

Featured Recipe

Most fish can be cooked directly from the frozen state without prior defrosting. In fact, research has found that thawing fish before cooking robs if of approximately 30 percent of its nutritional value. When cooking frozen fish, be sure to increase cooking time accordingly.

Here is a recipe that requires precooking the fillets, flaking, and combining with other ingredients for a baked casserole.

FLOUNDER

2 cups cooked, flaked flounder (prepared using poaching or steaming method)
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, separated
1 can condensed cream of chicken soup

Combine fish, salt, and beaten egg yolks. Stir in condensed cream of chicken soup. Beat egg whites. Fold into the fish mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 20-30 minutes. Serves four.

Dairy Recipe Drawing Offers $500 In Prizes

June Dairy Month is "mooving" into the calendar of events. That means it's time to send in your favorite recipe using dairy products for Lancaster Farming's annual dairy recipe drawing.

June Dairy Month salutes dairy farmers everywhere for their hard work in providing milk, which we so often take for granted. Lancaster Farming's annual drawing reminds us of all the wonderful dairy products available to produce culinary delights.

To enter the drawing, select your favorite recipe, which must include a substantial amount of at least one dairy product. These ingredients count as a dairy product: milk, cream, sour cream, whipped cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, dry milk, ice cream, and all hard and soft cheeses.

Please check your ingredients carefully. Margarine and non-dairy substitutes such as frozen whipped topping do not qualify as dairy products.

Dairy recipes are needed for appetizers, soups, breads, entrees, vegetables, desserts, beverages, snacks, and salads.

Clearly print or type your recipe entry. Be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, times, and sizes of baking dishes to use. We reserve the right to disqualify entries if these guidelines are not followed.

With your entry, include a few paragraphs about yourself and your family. Although it is not required, a photograph of you and of your family is preferred. We and our readers love to "see" the people who send in the recipes.

Photographs will be returned if you write your name and address on the back of the picture.

Only one entry per family allowed. This contest is for adults who are at least 18-years-old. We require this because children who send in recipes often inadvertently miss measurements, ingredients or a part of the instructions.

Send your recipe, photo, and accompanying information with your complete address. If we do not have your complete mailing address, we cannot send your prize if you win.

Send entries immediately. Entries must be postmarked by June 3 to be eligible for the drawing. The state dairy princess and alternates will select the winners. Recipe entries will be printed throughout the month of June. A list of the winners will be printed in the June 29 issue.

Send entries to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Dairy Drawing, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St., Ephrata, PA 17522 or e-mail to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com.

Harnish Prepares For Auction To Benefit People With Disabilities

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

AKRON (Lancaster Co.) — "Life is full of changes," John Harnish said. "And now it seems time to find a better way."

The better way to which Harnish refers requires relinquishing the care of his youngest daughter Faye to a home for adults with developmental disabilities.

It has been more than 35 years since Harnish and his wife Dorothy were told their newborn baby—number nine in the family—had been born with Down's syndrome, a congenital disorder caused by an extra 21st chromosome and marked by moderate to severe retardation.

Emotions of denial soon changed to one of acceptance. The family grew to love and help Faye reach her potential. One by one the other children left the family farm in Chester County to set up their own household. Faye stayed with her parents.

They were pleased to hear about Friendship Community, a nonprofit Christian ministry supporting adults with developmental disabilities. Founded in 1972, the ministry now includes 17 group homes in Lancaster County and one in Lebanon County. Friendship also oversees apartment living for 38 adults, a life-sharing program for 12 adults, and setting up home-based programs.

In 1986, Harnish sold the poultry, dairy, and crop farm to a son. The Harnishes searched for a home closer to Friendship Community.

Within six months of moving to Akron, Harnish's wife suffered a stroke and is wheelchair-bound.

"I had expected to volunteer for several church organizations, but life is full of changes. God was ahead of me," Harnish said. He explained that the house they purchased was wheelchair-accessible, which eased the burden of caring for an invalid wife. Now, Harnish had a wife and a mother dependent on his care.

"I'm not wasting my time. This is my job," Harnish said of the responsibility of caring for a daughter with disabilities.

But advancing age is forcing Harnish to provide for Faye's future by helping her make a transition to a new home. Faye is on Friendship Community's waiting list of 78 people. Harnish is grateful for the organization that helps ease his concern for Faye's future.

John Harnish, father of a daughter with Down's syndrome and former farmer, built these woodworking projects to be auctioned at the Friendship Community Fest and Auction May 11. Sue Groff, community relations coordinator for Friendship Community, said the proceeds from the annual auction help provide services to 133 adults with developmental disabilities.

The caregiving that confines Harnish to home provides time for him to "tinker with woodworking."

For the past three years, Harnish made several woodworking projects that he donated to Friendship Community's annual auction.

On May 11, three of his projects will be auctioned. This includes a toy chest stenciled with Noah's ark and whimsy drawings of animals, a hooded doll cradle, and a shelf clock.

Friendship Community's ninth annual Fest and Auction is planned May 10-11 at 1149 E. Oregon Rd., Lititz.

The event kicks off Friday, May 10, with a chicken barbecue served from 5 p.m.-7 p.m. and musical entertainment by the Uncles, five Kurtz brothers originally from the Morgantown area. The Uncles combine hymns, family songs, and story-telling.

Other Friday features include a silent auction from 5 p.m.-7 p.m., a face-value certificate sale, and a preview of crafts, plants, and merchandise to be auctioned the following day.

Saturday's events open at 8 a.m. with coffee and doughnuts. The general auction begins at 8:30 a.m. A specialty auction is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. and quilts at 1 p.m.

A children's auction and a lawn and garden auction will run simultaneously. Children's activities include a bouncing moonwalk, games, crafts, and more.

The food court will offer Ethiopian food in addition to traditional auction and Lancaster County favorites.

For more information, call Sue Groff, (717) 656-2466, ext. 104.

ANSWER — A Pine Grove reader requested recipes for different kinds of soft pretzels. Here is one sent in by Alverna Martin, Wellsboro.

Auntie Ann's Soft Pretzels

1 tablespoon yeast
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 cup warm water
1 cup Soft as Silk flour
1 cup Occident flour
1 cup all-purpose flour

Dissolve yeast and brown sugar in warm water. Add the different kinds of flour until a soft dough forms (may not need as much as listed). Shape dough into pretzel shapes. Combine the following together until baking soda dissolves:

1½ tablespoon baking soda
½ cup warm water

Dip pretzels into baking soda water. Place pretzels on baking sheet. Sprinkle with salt. Bake at 450 degrees for 10 minutes. Remove from oven. Dip into melted butter. Sprinkle with sour cream and onion powder.

Alverna writes that these are very good. Sometimes she substitutes Occident flour for the other two flours and the pretzels still taste good.

ANSWER — An anonymous person wanted a recipe for peach butter. Thanks to Marlene Ochs, Reading, who writes that she won second place at the Pennsylvania Farm Show with this recipe.

Peach Butter

18 medium peaches
4 cups sugar

To prepare pulp, wash and blanch peaches. Peel, pit, and chop peaches. Cook until soft, adding only enough water to prevent sticking (about ½ cup). Press through a sieve or food mill. Measure 2 quarts peach pulp.

To prepare butter, combine peach pulp and sugar in a large saucepot. Cook until thick enough to round up on a spoon. As mixture thickens, stir frequently to prevent sticking (may take several hours). Ladle hot butter into hot jars leaving ¼ headspace. Adjust two-piece caps. Process 10 minutes in a boiling water canner. Yields about 4 pints.

Thanks to Shirley Orfanella, Quarryville, for sending the following recipe:

Peach Butter

2 quarts peach pulp (1½ dozen medium-sized fully ripe peaches
4 cups sugar

To make pulp, wash, scald, pit, peel, and chop peaches. Cook until soft, adding only enough water to prevent sticking. Press through a sieve or food mill. Measure pulp. Add sugar. Cook until thick about 30 minutes. As mixture thickens, stir frequently to prevent sticking. Pour into jars. Makes approximately 4 pints.

Thanks to Mrs. Ray Keeny for sending the following recipe that she said makes a very good peach butter.

Peach Butter

Wash and cut 4 pounds peaches into quarts. Cook slowly until soft in 2 cups water or cider vinegar (I use mixture of both). Put the fruit through a strainer. Add to each cup of pulp:

⅔ cup sugar Add:
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon allspice

Cook butter until it sheets from a spoon. Cook slowly and stir often. This can be made in a crockpot where it would not require as much stirring.

ANSWER — Thanks to Kathryn Martin, Quarryville, for sending her favorite grilled cheese sandwich, which had been requested.

Monte Cristo Sandwich

2 eggs
¼ cup milk
Pinch salt
6-8 slices bread
6-8 slices sweet bologna or ham
6-8 slices cheese (American or Swiss)
Strawberry or raspberry jelly or jam

In a bowl, mix eggs, milk and salt. Set aside. Spread jelly on one slice of bread, add meat and cheese and another piece of bread. Heat skillet and add butter. When butter is melted, dip both sides of sandwich in egg mixture. Fry until golden brown. Makes 3-4 sandwiches.

ANSWER — Thanks to V. Stauffer for sending this recipe.

Dairy Checkoff Helps Spur Cheese Sales

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The dairy industry has partnered with Taco Bell and Pizza Hut on the introduction of two extremely cheese-friendly products: Steak Quesadilla and P'ZONE respectively.

The Steak Quesadilla from Taco Bell features a blend of three cheeses, mozzarella, cheddar and pepper jack, and uses eight times more cheese than other items on the menu.

Dairy Management, Inc.™ (DMI) assisted Taco Bell with consumer research and trend data to demonstrate the value and appeal that three cheeses would deliver to quesadilla consumers. Taco Bell is promoting the Steak Quesadilla via national television, print, in-restaurant and Internet advertising.

The P'ZONE is Pizza Hut's version of a portable, hand-held pizza product that is eaten like a sandwich. A 12-inch medium-sized, pizza crust is used and filled with sliced — not shredded — mozzarella cheese, veggies and crumbled sausage. The P'ZONE is then folded over by hand and sealed. DMI worked with Pizza Hut to fund consumer research that tested the P'ZONE, which performed extremely well in test markets across the country. Though the P'ZONE resembles a calzone, Pizza Hut says it is not because the difference is the cheese: the P'ZONE uses stretchy, stringy mozzarella, which 16- to 24-year-olds find fun to eat. A calzone is bursting with hot, soft and gushy ricotta. Pizza Hut is spending $70 million to promote P'ZONE nationally.

For the month of February, same-store sales at Taco Bell and Pizza Hut were up 10 percent and six percent, respectively, versus a year ago. The Steak Quesadilla and P'ZONE are helping to fuel this growth.

Additionally, Papa John's, a direct competitor of Pizza Hut, has rolled out two extremely cheese-friendly specialty pizzas: a six-cheese pizza that will feature mozzarella, parmesan, asiago, smoked provolone, fontina and romano cheeses, and a spinach alfredo pizza that is also boosting six cheeses.

More than $65,000 was raised recently at this $100 per plate Praise Dinner conducted at the Lebanon Valley Expo Center. Wenger Foundation founded in 1996 by Wengers of Myerstown, a farm supply business, organizes the annual event to raise money for area Christian charities. In addition to the buffet-style meal, participants enjoy gospel music entertainment. Since the Foundation's beginnings, it has raised more than $350,000 to support religious, educational, and community service programs.

young people and their families to the gardens for an educational opportunity, "A Garden To Sweeten the Imagination," a Children's Garden, is slated to open in 2003.

The area is one hands-on learning experience after another, from the compass court that teaches geography to the tutoring they will receive in sundial garden.

An herbal patch of plants used by pioneers will be planted within ladder rungs, a wagon wheel, and antique iron kettles. Students will also review the alphabet with the ABC border, where colorful plants represent the letters of the alphabet with the first letter of each plant name.

In addition to plant identification, students will also investigate plant smell in the fragrance garden. An Education Center will provide more programs year-round, said Klein. The organization has a continuing capital campaign underway.

The gardens drew more than 101,000 visitors from all over the U.S. and world last year. The 2002 season will end Oct. 31. Admission is $6 adults. Although most of the visitors use the self-guided tour information, guided tours can be requested.

Don't Work Wet Soil

Rosie Lerner
Purdue Consumer Horticulture Specialist

GREENSBURG (Westmoreland Co.) — Many gardeners are getting that urge to get out the tiller and work up their garden soil. But before you do make sure the soil has dried out from the recent rains. It really is best for the long-term health of your garden to resist the urge to work the soil when it is too wet. Whether you use a tiller, plow or just a garden spade, wet soil will be badly compacted by the tillage and the effects could last for years.

Working wet soil tends to compress the soil particles so that they become more tightly packed, thus leaving less room for water and air, both of which are critical for good root growth. This also makes it more difficult for plant roots and gardening equipment to move through the soil. The compression forms large, tight clods (clumps) of soil that become hard as a rock when they dry and are next to impossible to break up.

This type of soil compaction has long lasting effects, taking years to rebuild a healthy soil structure. Rescuing a compacted soil generally will require tilling in large amounts organic matter, such composted plant and animal wastes and/or green manure crops, such as annual rye or winter grains.

It is much harder to improve a poor, compacted soil than it is to maintain a good soil so the best course of action is to prevent the compaction from happening in the first place.

The rule of thumb is to wait until the soil is dry enough to crumble through your fingers when squeezed in your hand. If the soil forms a muddy ball when squeezed, it is still too wet. Give the soil another few days to dry, and sample again later.

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well--until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Ag In The Classroom Moves Outside The Classroom

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — If the best education is hands-on experience, fourth graders at Conestoga Valley (C.V.) will long remember the valuable lessons they learned during a recent visit to a dairy farm.

For five years now, C.V. students have visited a farm and rotated through several stations where presenters covered topics ranging from the food chain to pollution. More than 260 fourth graders, teachers, and 37 volunteers, who included parental and presenter help, divided into two groups that went to separate dairy farms.

Deb Nace, soil conservationist representing Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS), taught students about pollution with the EnviroScape model, which illustrates the effect of rain and runoff on the earth's water sources. Nace attempted to show "that manure isn't always bad, and that farmers should still get to do some tillage," she said.

Nace helped students identify pollution sources "and how we reduce them," she said. In addition she attempted to show students that agriculture is not necessarily the primary polluter of water by pointing out that "homeowners need to reduce fertilizer and pesticide use."

Guided by Lancaster Farmland Trust representatives, students planned a community and attempted to balance business, industrial, residential, and agricultural needs.
Photos by Ann Garber, C.V. public relations

The EnviroScape model illustrated to students various sources of pollution.

Maria Forry explains the transport of milk to the milk tank to the students. Forry, along with her husband Tim, own the cows that produce the milk for the on-farm store. They milk 270 cows twice daily.

Jeff Swinehart and Matt Knepper, Lancaster Farmland Trust, led the students in a land use planning activity. Students plotted a town, attempting to balance housing and industry with agriculture needs. Many of the students learned that they could not fit farms too close to residential areas.

"We try to get them to think for themselves what certain types of land uses are more compatible," said Knepper. "We told them what they could do to preserve farmland, such as revitalizing towns rather than moving into the country."

They also emphasized the importance of agriculture to the economy.

Gerald Heistand, soil conservationist, demonstrated the small amount of land that humans live on and that is cultivated to produce food for the world. By comparing an apple to the world, he pared the apple, taking away proportionate slices of apple for oceans, desert, and wilderness. This illustrated the relatively small area of cultivated land.

Wearing suspenders that supported a trash can skirt, Ginny Good, Good's Disposal, spoke about landfills and the legislation that produced recycling laws.

Nancy Barton recruited Master Gardeners to teach the students the importance of insects to soil.

Veterinarian Stephen Foulke, dairy specialist, explained the tools in his truck that he uses to treat animals, such as what he uses to pull calves.

"This is how we work around the animals — we don't push them," he said. Foulke estimates that he spends half of his time on the job keeping animals healthy, such as vaccinating herds or teaching producers about temperature control, ventilation, and animal comfort.

Gaining Resources, Classroom Ideas: Teacher Shares Experience

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

Lynette Leaman, third grade teacher at Lititz Area Mennonite School, attended the Ag in the Classroom Teacher Workshop in July 2001.

The workshop is especially valuable "because teachers get tons of ideas for making the classroom more hands-on. The experiences are so important, I think. Kids love anything they can do that's interactive."

To help bring these activities to the classroom, workshop organizers "just filled my car with really good resources to take home — stuff that you could just take right away and use."

Many of the workshops took place off-campus, as participants toured area farms. A broad range of categories in agriculture were incorporated into the curriculum, from dairy to pig farming to orchards to vegetables, she said.

On one field trip, "we talked about sheep and the history of farming. They gave us all a drop spindle and samples of wool from different sheep." Consequently, at a recent colonial day in her classroom, Leaman's students carded and attempted to spin the wool with the spindle.

"I have more of a farming background than a lot of people and I learned a lot," said Leaman. Leaman's family raised a wide variety of animals over the years, besides cultivating a garden. "So I knew a lot more than some people. I can't imagine what I would have learned if I hadn't had the background."

A lot of workshops that were specific to one aspect of agriculture and were presented by "a very highly-qualified person. A lot of the people were farmers or teachers themselves." Activities that were presented, for instance, included planting grass seed in sock of nylon so students can observe process of growth.

Although teachers gain knowledge and materials, students also benefit. "Even the farming kids are more specialized in whatever are their family farm is in. No matter what the background of the student there's going to be something that's new."

Activities her students have especially enjoyed include a unit about nutrition, as they get to sample whatever they are studying that week.

This week Leaman planned to do a lesson on insects using ready-made overheads from the seminar.

Also while the students studied insects and learned about mouth parts, they were able to try using a clip or straw to see how inspects are specialized to be able to pick up objects.

While elementary and high school teachers took same field trips, individual workshops were geared toward the ages that the participants teach.

"The program is so incredibly organized and so well done," said Leaman. "The first night we had this incredible motivational speaker, I couldn't believe the quality of what we were getting and I didn't expect it to continue, but all week that was the caliber of the things we did."

Workshop Teaches Ag Education

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) —Teachers have become a key source to help students better understand agriculture in our suburbanized world.

To address this need, the Ag in the Classroom Teacher Workshop is an instructional weeklong program developed for teachers of elementary and secondary schools.

The workshop, July 21-26 at the Penn State University, teaches children about agriculture and the role it plays in their daily lives. Conducted once a year, it provides teachers with resource materials, lesson planning and hands-on experiences.

Nearly 500 teachers have participated in this program to date. Most of the educators received scholarships to the workshops by applying to their county farm bureaus.

Teachers from all over the state visit farms, and food production, processing and distribution plants.After the workshops, teachers are able to use their personal experiences to explain to their students how Pennsylvania's largest industry affects each of their lives every day.

Participants in the workshop receive room and board on the Penn State University campus in State College, transportation and educational resources. Upon successful completion of the course, participants receive graduate credits from Penn State.

Interested teachers can contact their county farm bureaus for information about tuition scholarships or procure their own financing through local businesses interested in the advancement of the agricultural community. For more information, or to receive a free Ag In The Classroom brochure, E-mail Member@pfb.com.

Visit the Ag Awareness Foundation of Pennsylvania web site for more information about the teacher workshops and sponsorship. There are also several agriculture lesson plans available at the site.

Spring Awareness Day Packed With Timely Information

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Hundreds of Berks Countians attended Spring Awareness Day at the Berks County Ag Center, April 25.

Numerous speakers examined timely issues. These included pointers on flag etiquette, ideas for backyard courtyards, significant historical females of the county, food and health quackery, and a look at antiques of the past, present, and future (see article featured in the Antiques Center of this section).

Monica Klein was presented with a $500 Berks County Homemakers' Scholarship to continue studies at Indiana University of Pennsylvania. Klein's consumer science degree also provides training in interior design and childcare.

Ladies of Readingtown

Barbara Goda brought Berks County history to life by impersonating Lilli Wilson, who served as a state legislator in the 1930s and was the first female to run for Pennsylvania governor.

Goda, who wrote two books about women who gained notoriety in Berks County history, said that Wilson was often misunderstood for her socialist stance. Contrary to popular opinion, the Socialist Party was not radical and did not hold communist ties. Instead it promoted pensions for the elderly, better working conditions for the working class, child labor laws, and many of the same goals that later became established through Social Security.

Wilson only received two percent of the vote in her quest for the governorship. While serving in the legislature, Wilson's proposals were constantly rejected, and she died an early death in 1937.

Goda explained how Wilson and many of the other women she wrote about had an influence on Berks County history. Goda's books are available in bookstores. The first book included profiles of 10 women and the second book profiles 12 women.

Backyard Courtyards

Ted Sloan, professional gardener, showed his collection of slides that picture his favorite backyards. The pictures demonstrated how people can take the smallest and most difficult places and turn them into gorgeous landscaping delights.

Some of the slides demonstrated how container gardening could be used to create the illusion of permanent plantings. To block out obstructive views, a living wall of plants can be erected.

Living walls combine a variety of fast-growing vines, trees, shrubbery, and flowers that become thicker and more lush through the years.

Sloan also said that bushes that are pruned can be turned into a tree. If bottom branches are removed, the bushes will develop a trunk and blossom on top.

Food, Health Quackery

Dr. Stephen Barrett, retired psychiatrist, debunked the claims of many popular health remedies.

Barrett combats health-related frauds, myths, fads, and fallacies through a Website known as Quackwatch.

In particular, Barrett warns of dangers associated with chelation therapy and alternative cancer remedies. He explained how health claims of many products are often misleading and unproven. Many people believe the claims because they think the government would not allow the claims to be advertised if untrue. Barrett said the government can only investigate a few of the thousands of products that flood the market with false advertising.

Barrett believes adequate nutrition in most cases can be achieved by a balanced diet, and that multivitamins are unnecessary. "Some diseases can be affected by diet, but that's not a reason to take supplements. It's a reason to eat more fruits and vegetables and a more balanced diet," Barrett said.

More than 800 pages on the Websites help viewers sort out what works and what doesn't.

"I debunk bad advice more than provide good advice," Barrett said of his Website's purpose.

For those who are interested, check out Barrett's Website at www.quackwatch.com

Rita Lesher, left, presents a $500 Berks County Extension Homemakers' scholarship to Monika Klein.

Venango Woman Inducted Into 4-H Hall Of Fame

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — One hundred people who have made a significant impact on 4-H at the local, state or national levels have been inducted into a new Internet-based national 4-H Hall of Fame. Among the honorees is a long-time supporter of 4-H programs in Venango County.

The induction ceremony took place during the National 4-H Conference last month in Chevy Chase, Md.

In 2002, 4-H is celebrating 100 years of building our nation's leaders while looking forward to even greater service to our country's young people, says Marilyn Corbin, state program leader for children, youth and families with Penn State Cooperative Extension. The inductees represent hundreds of thousands of dedicated volunteers and county, state and national staff who helped millions of young people learn valuable life skills over the past 100 years.

"Every state and Washington, D.C., will have at least one favorite son or daughter inducted into the hall of fame," Corbin says. "Members of the National 4-H Council, U.S. Department of Agriculture and the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents (NAE4-HA) also will be represented.

Among the 100 honorees is retired Penn State Cooperative Extension 4-H agent Urania Bell "Rainy" Linn of Venango County. A supporter of 4-H programs since her days as a youth member, Linn currently serves the Venango County 4-H Program as a 4-H fair board director and as treasurer of the 4-H Fair Inc. "Her influence within 4-H has been positive and an immeasurable benefit to the Venango County 4-H community," Corbin says.

The hall of fame, a centennial project of NAE4-HA's public relations and information committee, will exist exclusively in cyberspace. Anyone with a computer and an Internet connection can access information about 4-Hs 100 VIPs, who helped create, expand, promote and support the nations largest youth development program.

The Centennial Class inductees includes 13 4-H pioneers, 29 state extension directors, state program leaders or state staff, six major donors, nine county 4-H agents, 10 of the founders of NAE4-HA, 11 long-term volunteers (many with 50 or more years of service), three members of the U.S. Congress, six national program leaders, a composer, an astronaut and several successful business people.

ANSWER — Mable Harnish wanted to know how to keep deer from eating her flowers. Thanks to Pat Elligson, Millers, Md., who writes that she read the following remedy five years ago and it has worked well for her. Acquire a bag of hair from a beauty shop, cut the legs off an old pair of panty hose and stuff a good handful into the toe. Place a stone in and then another handful of hair. Repeat until the stocking is full. Tie a knot or use a twist tie to close the stocking. Stretch several of these around the edge of your flower bed. You can gradually push these hair snakes under the greenery as plants fill out. When you water, be sure to wet the hair too. She also places a couple handfuls of hair in old kneehighs and ties them loosely in the branches of fruit trees. This has worked great for her. (She has no luck in tossing a little hair around because it blows away).

Some flowers tasty as well as pretty

After I planted some pansies last week, a friend told me they are edible. Can I really eat them?

Yes, pansies are among a number of edible flowers. The colorful spring flowers can help decorate cakes, add color to salad, or float prettily in a punch bowl.

But as with herbs, vegetables, and anything edible from your garden, take a few precautions before popping a flower in your mouth. Be sure not to pick any flowers that have been sprayed with insecticides or other pesticides. Stay away from any flowers you've found growing along a roadside — you don't know what they've been exposed to.

Pick flowers when fully blossomed, at their peak, for the fullest flavor. Experts say it's best to pick them early in the day, after the dew has evaporated, then refrigerate in plastic bags until you're ready to use them. Before using, rinse the flowers thoroughly to be sure any soil and insects are washed completely away. Remove the stamens and pistils to avoid consuming pollen and its off-flavor.

And, of course, be certain that what you're eating really is edible. Some plants and flowers taste terrible, and some are even toxic — know what you're about to eat before you eat it.

Plenty of reference books and web sites are available that offer detailed information. One site by the Extension Service at North Carolina State University has a list of edible flowers as well as a link to a list of poisonous plants. It's at http://www.ces.ncsu.edu/depts/hort/hil/hil-8513.html.

That said, you can enjoy not only the looks but the flavor of a number of flowers, including:

- Lilacs. Vary widely in flavor.
- Daylilies. Some liken the flavor to zucchini or asparagus. Too many might have the effect of a laxative or diuretic, so eat in moderation.
- Roses. Can be sweet or bitter. Remove the white-colored base because it's always bitter.
- Rose of Sharon. Often has a mild, nutty flavor.
- Bee balm. Can have a citrus, minty or sweet flavor. Can be used to make tea, or in a salad.

2002 Virginia Beef Expo Draws Crowds

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

HARRISONBURG (Va.) — You name it and you saw it at the 2002 Virginia Beef Expo Friday and Saturday, April 19-20, at the Rockingham County Fairgrounds.

On Friday, the Limousin, Angus, Hereford, Simmental, Tarentaise, Red Angus, and Charolais breed sales ran concurrently in two sale rings. Youth activities and shows were conducted, in addition to educational demonstrations and a trade show.

Also conducted were a round hay bale evaluation, a forage knowledge contest, beef cooking demonstrations, and the Youth Steer Show sponsored by Virginia Tech and Block and Bridle.

There was also a breed display of Highland, Texas Longhorn, Angus, and Limousin.

The popular Barn Party for some 500 diners featured a mouth-watering Virginia beef dinner with trimmings, prepared by the Ruritan Club of Mt. Crawford and entertainment by a female country music artist.

Meanwhile, following a strong thunderstorm that hit the area and moved on, the hot sunshine bent penetrating rays upon visitors who scurried for cold drinks and icy dairy treats during the recesses they took from mopping their brows.

Leo Muncy from Pipesten, W.Va. was one of many Mid-Atlantic buyers who decided to attend the Expo. Muncy favors the Charolais breed and had plans to purchase a few more head to increase the 60-strong herd at home. His teen-aged son, Bobby Muncy, was on spring break from school anyway, so the duo made a one-day outing of the 300-mile, round trip.

Away from the crowds and waiting in the sunshine to purchase Charolais cattle at the 2002 Virginia Beef Expo, are Leo Muncy from Pipesten, W.Va. and son, Bobby Muncy.

Muncy said 12 years ago he had moved into farming country from the West Virginia coal fields and discovered the Charolais breed. He had observed them at the farm of a family friend. Since then, he's been raising purebred Charolais cattle.

"I just like em," he said. 'Its a little bit different."

According to Jim Ridell, the Expo is where the Virginia Association of Agricultural Extension Agents conducts their big annual fund raiser. He was one of several chefs grilling the medium rare, rib eye steaks and beef tenderloins the association was offering to hungry passers-by.

Ridell said with the money raised, the association is financially able to support the professional improvement activities of its members.

Mindy McCroskey, also on Friday was named the 2002 Virginia Beef Industry Queen.

The Virginia Tech sophomore from Bristol, majoring in agricultural education, reported owning a number of registered Simmental and commercial beef cattle.

"This is just another way to be an ambassador to promote the industry," the enthusiastic young woman said while she served samples of strips featuring an under-utilized beef cut to visitors.

McCroskey succeeds Emory and Henry College student, Jennifer Belcher, who was the 2001 Virginia Beef Queen.

An exciting addition to the fairgrounds was opened mere hours before the Beef Expo got under way. It is a 100 by 100 by 38-foot canvas hoop building, otherwise called an alternative structure. During its construction the high white canopy roof had been a matter of curiosity in the neighborhood according to an outside report.

Dennis Cupp, general manager for the Rockingham County Fair Association, was glad to see the barn with its fan system become a reality even if the electrical system wasn't finished in time for the event.

With Rick Reeves who handled the job, Cupp reported it was designed to withstand winds that could reach 70 miles per hour in the Shenandoah Valley.

In the first hours of operation it seemed to be cool and functioning well, if the clusters of people chatting together was anything to go by. Generators provided alternative power to operate individual fans exhibitors had brought in to maintain the comfort of their animals.

Cupp said the next major improvement scheduled at the fairgrounds is a large paving project. The project to surface the nexus of shale, gravel and dirt roads was slated to begin very soon, Cupp said.

Youth activities on Saturday forenoon ran concurrently in the show rings and featured showmanship competitions, Stockmens Contest for Youth and Adults, Simmental and Commercial Replacement Heifers and Angus and Hereford.

A Youth Cattle Working Contest lead the afternoon schedule, followed by the Commercial Heifer Sale; awards, Shorthorn, other registered breeds and Red Angus.

This cow and calf pair of registered Highland cattle delighted visitors at the Beef Expo.

Newly crowned Virginia Beef Queen, Mindy McCroskey, from Bristol, serves visitor Lewis Sapp from Winston-Salem, N.C., with consignment sale salad, which features strips of underutilized beef cut.

Jim Ridell grills rib eye steaks and beef tenderloin at the Rockingham County Fairgrounds. Ridell belongs to the Virginia Association of agricultural extension agents, which annually raises funds for the professional improvement activities for its members.

Montgomery County Master Gardeners Plant Sale May 18

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — The Penn State/ Montgomery County Master Gardeners will be conducting its fourth annual plant sale on Saturday, May 18, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the 4-H Center in Creamery.

The sale will feature plants from the Master Gardeners' gardens as well as a wide selection of perennials, herbs, annuals, and shrubs. An auction of garden-related goodies and a special garden prize highlight the day.

A new feature this year is the introduction of the Pennsylvania Horticulture Society Gold Medal plants. These are underused plants selected by PHS, which are hardy to this area and are relatively pest-free. Joe Ziccardi, the director of the Gold Medal plants program for PHS, will be on hand for a presentation and to answer questions about these exciting plants.

There will also be presentations about color matching container plants, building garden structures such as trellises, the world of lavender, and hypertufa planters. Master Gardeners will be stationed throughout the display gardens demonstrating proper gardening techniques and pond care. Dealing with plants and the drought will also be tackled through a display and a special presentation.

Special annuals will be another feature of the sale. The Pennsylvania Gardener selects a group of annuals that will be available for sale. These are hardy annuals that have been trailed throughout the state by Master Gardeners and singled out as the best in the state. They are easy care and beautiful all year long.

This year's plant of the year is Petunia Tidal Wave Cherry, a hot red-pink petunia that brightens up any landscape. They will also have a selection of Proven Winners annuals; Proven Winners plants bloom constantly and fill out planters and beds very quickly.

The Montgomery County 4-H Center is located on Route 113 between Route 29 and Route 73 in Creamery. Call the horticultural office for directions or a schedule of events at (610) 489-4315.

★★ New Products Now Available ★★

~ • The Advantages of the Fiberglass Wheels are: ~

- Very Low Maintenance Costs These wheels are built to last a lifetime and beyond without ever having to replace any parts on the wheels under normal use The only maintenance required will be tightening up or replacing the tire or rubber.
- High Performance Regardless of the Elements Wheels stay tight even in hot, dry conditions – No more loose rattling spokes – ever!
- Rugged Heavy Duty Design It takes a major accident or impact to break or twist these wheels
- Hard Durable Surface Resists scuffs and scratches, paint job stays shinier
- Easier Cleaning Spokes have all rounded corners, no tight spots for dirt to get into

~ • The Advantages of the Fiberglass Springs are: ~

- Lightweight A fiberglass spring weighs 22 lbs. less than a steel spring, 44 lbs. less weight on the carriage.
- Durable One Piece Design No bolts to give out or wear.
- Better Performance With Heavy Loads The more weight, the better the ride, will not go flat and bottom out.
- No Rusting Ever Paint will not blister or peel off. No rust stains running out between the plys, providing a nicer appearance and much easier cleaning.
- A Lifetime Guarantee If these springs ever break under normal use, we will replace them free of charge.

Harry Moseley Views Antqiues Market – Past, Present, Future

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Harry Moseley has been collecting antiques for many decades. He has seen the growth of interest and the changes in the market. He has some ideas about the future potential of antiques. He also has a pet peeve.

"What sticks in my craw is seeing things that are not as old as I am," Moseley said of items displayed as antiques.

Moseley is from the old school. He believes that antiques date back at least 100 years. Nonetheless, he acknowledges that some experts consider items dated pre-1940s as antiques.

Moseley is well-versed in the authenticity of china, curios, and items other than furniture. He sells at many shows under the name Moseley's Antiques and Curios, and is often used as an appraiser.

Recently Moseley spoke at the Spring Awareness Workshop sponsored by Berks County Cooperative Extension, Leesport.

Selected people were asked to bring a treasured item for Moseley to appraise. Time limits prevented Moseley from commenting on all the items displayed. Instead he selected a few items on which he talked about to the audience.

He picked up an Early English ceramic plate that he believed to have been made between 1820-1830. He estimated it to be between $195-$275.

Moseley received his introduction to antiques when he was stationed three years in England. Because Moseley had no other acquaintances, he accompanied his ROTC officer to antiques shows every weekend.

The items displayed fascinated Moseley and he was soon purchasing some for himself. Three years later, Moseley returned to the states, where he married and introduced his wife to antique browsing. Although the couple had careers in the education field, they spent their weekends antiquing.

"In the last 20 years, there had been a big market increase," Moseley said of value attached to items.

> "Many items displayed at antique shows do not qualify as legitimate antiques but are of interest to collectors, and often command high prices."
> Harry Moseley
> Antiques Dealer

"There has also been big changes in the market. There's more collectibles (than bona fide antiques)."

Moseley sees this switch as both good and bad. It has created more interest in collecting, especially items that the consumer remembers from childhood days.

This ceramic man was used as a tobacco jar and is valued about $125.

The real antiques are harder to find.

For persons interested in collecting antiques, Moseley offers the following guidelines:

• Learn about what interests you. Dealers and collectors love to talk about the items they have collected. Their knowledge serves as a wealth of information to newcomers.

• The best collections are put together by people who loved the pieces. The worst collections are put together by people who collect to make a profit rather than a personal affinity for the items.

• Look for what you like.

• Buy the best you can afford, rather than several lesser value items, and you'll always be ahead.

• Stay away from "contrived" collectibles, such as those things planned to be collectibles. Examples are Franklin Mint coins and Beanie Babies.

People often want to know what will increase in value in the future.

"To look to the future, one must look at the past," Moseley said. He offers the following advice:

• Items that continue to hold value are early glass, early china, primitive items, early furniture, art, coins and stamps.

• When buying new things, it's better to buy pieces designed by an artisan rather than mass-produced.

• Early electrical appliances.

The more you learn, the better your chance of finding an item at a good price, Moseley said. Such is the case with early glass. Moseley said many people are familiar with Depression era glass; therefore it is harder to find a bargain. Fewer people are familiar with old glass, which sometimes can be found at garage sales and shows at bargain prices because the seller doesn't realize the value.

Moseley offered a humorous perspective on the Revolutionery War. He said the English always made business a priority. Within a year of the end of the Revolutionery War, England was making and marketing plates featuring American scenes. "It didn't matter that they had lost the war, they won our commerce," Moseley said.

Moseley, Reading, can be contacted by phone at (610) 916-3148.

From a collection of items on display, Harry Moseley selects his personal favorite — an English ceramic plate of early composition, which is lighter than ironstone. He estimates the plate to have been made between 1820-1830, and places the value between $195-$275.

The game board Parcheesi is valued between $125-$150.

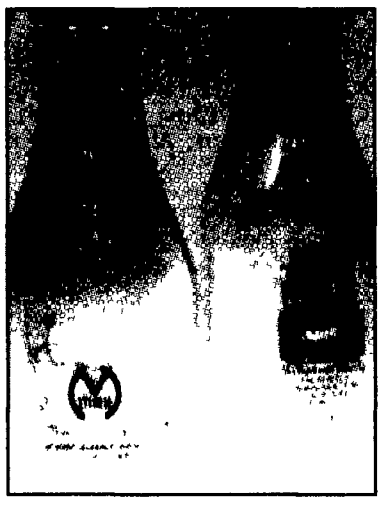
National Association Of Milk Bottle Collectors To Convene May 31-June 2

GRANTVILLE, Md. — The National Association of Milk Bottle Collectors will conduct its 22nd annual convention at the Holiday Inn in Grantville, May 31 to June 2.

The organization's purpose is to research and expand the international hobby of milk bottle collecting.

The official publication is "The Milk Route" which has been published monthly since October 1980. It has documented the research and study of the fluid milk industry and its related collecting.

The annual convention provides the opportunity for members to meet, buy, sell, and display bottles and related memorabilia. Hundreds of collectors from all over the U.S. and several Canadian Provinces attend the annual event. Educational displays, discussions, research materials, and directories are available throughout the show.



Goat milk bottles are rare because most goat dairies were small operations with limited production, which did not justify the expense of making a custom bottle.

The convention gives members and interested persons the chance to see and purchase items evoking memories.

The public will be able to view exhibits and will be encouraged to meet with members. However, for the security of all the guests in the hotel, all non-members will be asked to register in the lobby. All participants must wear name tags when walking through the exhibits, hallways and member's rooms. To learn more, join about 2,000 other collectors.

Yearly membership is $20 U.S., $22 Canada, and $25 International. Membership fee includes a subscription to "The Milk Route." For more information contact the publishers at P.O.B. 105, Blooming Grove, NY 10914 or moto2@frontiernet.net.

Barometers Reflect Weather, Price Changes

Just as many factors determine weather fluctations, so do the prices for the antique barometers that show what's happening weather-wise. Prices vary widely when the three types come to auction. The most common is the stick barometer that includes the marine type. Those made from the 18th to early 19th century can range in price at auction from $1,000 to $10,000. 19th century wheel forms can sell from $500 to $4,000.

The 19th century aneroid (round) go from $300 to several thousand dollars.

Scientifically, barometers measure the weight of the atmosphere, and as this barometric pressure fluctuates, any changes in the weather can be predicted. In 1688, John Smith, a London clockmaker created world interest and the making of barometers, when his pamphlet on the subject was published. The pamphlet was titled "A Compleat Discourse of the Nature, Use, and Right Managing of that Wonderful Instrument the Baroscope, or Quick-silver Weather-Glass." London became the main production center, followed by France, Germany and the Netherlands.

Not only the maker, and the history, but the craftsmanship of the cases attract collectors. Many are in museums such as the Mariner's Museum in Newport News, Virginia.

Barometers moved from being strictly utilitarian by the late 17th century when beautiful cases were made to contain them. The wealthy and royalty were the first to use them as status symbols with a practical purpose. The barometer itself was a straight, glass tube, placed in a small cistern and mounted on wood. Their gilded and carved cases followed the popular styles in decorative objects. Another decorative form used a combination of the angle barometer and a thermometer to frame a mirror.

German barometers of the same period decorated their cases with ebonized and gilded wood chinoiserie.

The wheel barometer made home use commonplace by the 19th century.

While the mercury was easier to read, the banjo shape, with the dial at the bottom; a thermometer on the shaft and a hygrometer, for gauging the moisture, at the top, made elaborate and unusual case designs possible.

Mass produced barometers were made after 1830 in not only the Sheraton style but also with the only decoration sometimes being the name of the shop engraved on a name plate.

A great variety of styles were mass produced in America by the late 19th century. They followed such popular forms as wall clocks, decorated with leaf and scroll carving of walnut. Store barometers of golden oak were made in huge quantities.

CLUES: When buying be aware that unrestored examples and those with altered mechanisms should be priced lower. Either take an expert with you or carefully examine them.

Not only 18th but early 19th century English barometers have been and still are being reproduced. Collectors look for early maker names, quality workmanship on the cases along with fine woods, inlays and signs of age. Prices go up when dials are ivory or silvered. Rarities can bring astronomical prices even with restorations.

More when attributed to a known maker of the period.

There are many barometers made of unusual materials and shapes.

These would include miniatures and table top examples. An unusual material would be a Victorian papier mach'e case, inlaid with mother-of-pearl and gilt. One came to auction a couple of years ago and sold for more than $1,400.

Many dairies pictured babies on milk bottles to help sell their products. The advertizing was effective regardless of whether or not the babies portrayed cute smiles or screaming tantrums.

Antiques Questions And Answers

Can you give me some information about this red (not ruby) glass pitcher and two water glasses, with large, painted white flowers? My grandmother was 82 in 1935 when she gave the set to me.

N.M.L. - Brackenridge, PA

Your late Victorian water glass set could have a shop price of $150-250.

Any idea of the value of this souvenir Walt Disney War bond? As you see it has color drawings of some of the most popular Disney characters. It was a Christmas gift from my father to me in 1944 and says, "United States Treasury War Finance Committee.

P.K.L. - Naples, FL

Your charming example of a Disney War bond could sell to a collector for several hundred dollars.

This picture is of an old glass creamer and spoon holder or sugar bowl has a blue, smokey and almost white color. Belonged to my great grandmother.

Would love to know something about them.

P.H. - N. Apollow, PA

Your late 19th century, shaded opalescent glass pieces are in the Spanish Lace pattern. The sugar and creamer set could sell in a shop for around $400.

This baby buggy was bought in 1907 by my parents. It has a parasol top that is quite worn. However the condition of the leather interior and rubber tires are good. Is there a value to it?

M.J. S. - Vandergrift, PA

As is, it could sell in a shop for around $150-250.

I recently inherited this beautiful, cut crystal table lamp with prisms. How old is it and what could it be worth?

M.R.- China Grove, NC

Cut glass table lamps with the mushroom shaped top sell for over $3,500 in antique shops. They were made in the first quarter of the 20th century.

When we bought this highback, oak bed with carved designs, the dealer told us it came from a plantation in Georgia and the factory that built the bed burned down in the Civil War. Can you tell me the value and where we could sell it ? Since we live in the Florida Keys we haven't been able to get anyone to look at it.

N. L. - Islamorada, FL

That dealer should get a prize for fiction. Highback, oak beds such as yours with applied, carved trim, were first made in the late 19th century. While this type of bed is most popular in the mid-west, it could sell in a Florida antique show for from $800 up. I suggest you run an ad in the Miami Herald or check out antique dealers in the Miami Yellow pages.

Dealers travel, once they know that you have a fine, old bed.

My grandmother treasured this curved glass china cabinet that she purchased around 1900. Now it is mine and I want to have it insured.

What would its replacement value be? It is golden oak and has glass on front and sides.

ZA.M. - Staten Island, NY

It could cost from $1,500 to $2,500 to replace your china cabinet.

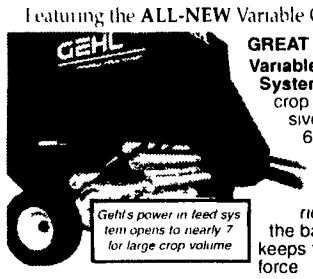
GEHL. MODEL RB 2580 ROUND BALERS

Featuring the ALL-NEW Variable Open-Throat Power In-Feed System



Gehl's power in feed system opens to nearly 7 for large crop volume

GREAT BALING STARTS HERE

Variable Open-Throat Power In-Feed System Here s how it works The incoming crop is pulled off the pickup by the aggressive action of two power in-feed rolls – a 6 inch-diameter pivoting power in-feed roll on top and an 8-inch diameter fixed power in feed roll on the bottom The top pivoting power in-feed roll rides over the crop as it is pulled into the bale chamber An extension spring keeps the toproll under constant downward force

The spring tension increases as the variable throat opens from a minimum of 3/4 of an inch up to a maximum opening of nearly 7 inches

The constant downward force of the pivoting upper powered in feed roll, in combination with the fixed lower in feed roll both turning inward pinches the crop and forces it into the bale chamber The stripping roll strips crop off the belt and forces it down to the incoming crop Adjustable scrapers on the stripping roll and pivoting roll eliminate buildup

THREE-BALL TWINE BOX. Gehl balers are designed to keep you going all day long with six-ball twine storage They're located in full-size doors that open to provide easy access to baler components like an optional chain oiler system or the Total Density Control adjustments

GAUGE WHEELS. Allow the pickup to follow field contours while keeping tines out of the dirt That saves wear and tear on the pickup and means less dirt in your bale Gauge wheels are standard equipment with the wide pickup and an option with some others

BELTS. Deluxe balers feature chevron belts (pictured above) with heavy duty plate-type belt lacing The belts are 6-1/2 inches wide for closer spacing between belts and less space between the belts and side sheets Belts are configured in a staggered pattern to minimize trash build-up.

RHINO Quality

DB150. Over 30 years of hydraulic mower design experience has made the Rhino® DB150 the preferred choice of experienced operators for the mowing of pond banks levees drainage ditches and hard-to-reach areas

The DB150 can extend to a maximum of 158 from the center line of the tractor allowing the 60 inch rotary head to cut areas that are difficult or impossible to reach with ordinary mowers By being hydraulically driven maintenance is greatly reduced with the absence of belts and pulleys The DB150 outperforms many competitive units with smaller hydraulic systems The DB150 utilizes a 60 gallon hydraulic system which allows the unit to run cooler in tough mowing conditions The large reservoir also serves as a counterweight and remains stationary on the mainframe, eliminating the potential traffic hazard of a movable counter-balance weight The DB150 features a heavy-duty three-point hitch using a lower double lug hitch system to fit a wide range of tractors To help insure a clean cut, the DB150 features updraft blades and a blade tip speed of 20,028 FPM

When It's Time to Plant Go With The PRO

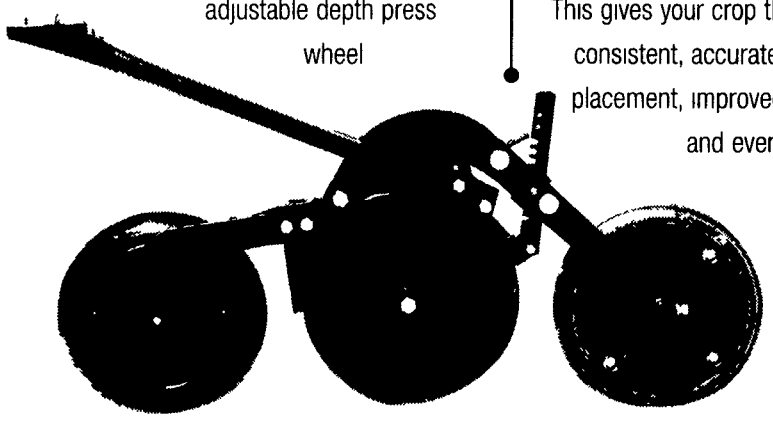
Krause 5250 Series PRO-System No-Till Grain Drills break new ground for precise, accurate seed depth control!

PRO-System drills feature Krause's exclusive precision residue opener which utilizes a 3" x 14" depth gauging wheel in front of the double disc opener, followed by an adjustable depth press wheel

The drawbar pivots above the opener, allowing the gauge wheel, opener and press wheel to cross over uneven ground while maintaining precise control of seeding depth This gives your crop the advantage of consistent, accurate seed depth placement, improved seed germination, and even stand emergence.



KRAUSE

leads the precision residue opener by only 24", which enhances tracking on hillsides and helps to ensure uniform seeding depth.

What's heat forming?

In metal roofing and siding it's the best way to go! Here is why. Everlast heats the paint very hot on their Everlast II product before they cut and form it into roofing and siding. Tests have proven that heating paint before cutting and bending prevents virtually all microscopic cracks in the paint. Ask our competition if they heat form. It's important. Normally manufacturers form and cut at room temperature. Unfortunately that cracks the paint causing early rust at formed bends and edges.

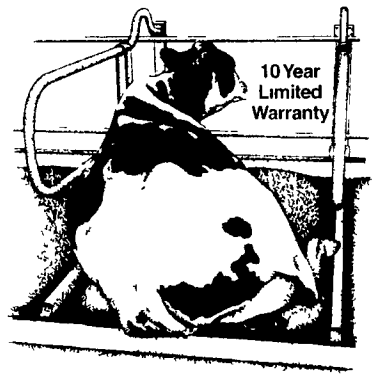
Waterbeds for Cows



ALANTA

A member of the LimPoly group of companies. Patent Pending

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE
The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 10-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE
The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter

SAFE
Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow is gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

ALFALFA SEED $1.55/Lb.
from the Dakota's Trask Family Seeds
- Features grower-to grower direct seed sales
- S.D.S.U. tested and researched
- Distributed from Parkesburg, PA
- $1.55/per lb. in 60 lb. bags
- Varieties: S.D. Common, Vernal and Rhyzoma
- Dakota alfalfas are dormancy rated at 2 and proven to excel in winter hardiness and production!
- Trask Seed is American grown and priced to reflect no corporate monopolies!

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said. The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased.

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting superb alfalfa from South Dakota seed

Custom Manure Hauling
Reduced compaction provides you with healthier crops and higher yields. We offer the flotation of a farm tractor & spreader or try our new truck tractor & trailer tanker Combine the road speed of a truck (a tractor's greatest limitation) with nearly the same flotation as a tractor & spreader It will go anywhere our tractor will.

Custom Tillage
We also offer a deep tillage service if you find yourself having to do something about compacted ground. We have a 9-tooth Sunflower chisel fitted with 5 chisel teeth and 4 ripper Shanks. You have the choice of 4 inch twisted shovels for good residue coverage or 2 inch straight points for less coverage All of our customers who have had used this have been very pleased with the results.
